

Revulsion World-Wide in Chessman Killing

LONDON (UPI)—The execution of Caryl Chessman touched off a worldwide wave of revulsion that rapidly developed into anti-American outbursts in some countries. (See also Pages 3 and 17.)

A crowd of 150 students demonstrated outside the U.S. embassy in Montevideo, Uruguay, shouting "murderers" and "assassins" in protest against the gassing of Chessman.

Police in Stockholm sent extra radio cars to the vicinity of the U.S. embassy to head off any possible attacks. Feeling ran particularly high in Scandinavia.

Police arrested three students at the U.S. consulate in Montreal.

The tendency was to blame all Americans and the United States for his death.

"Shame on the United States," an Italian in Milan screamed over the phone to the UPI bureau. "I will spit in the face of the next American tourist I meet in the street... barbarians."

An Italian newspaper headlined, "Chessman killed in the gas chamber; cruel America."

Crowds gathered outside a Rio de Janeiro newspaper to protest and denounce the United States as a "miserable country." Brazil has refused an extradition treaty with the United States because of Brazilian opposition to U.S. capital punishment.

In Rome, where the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano had denounced the plans to execute Chessman as barbaric, all newspapers carried ominous front page reports of the moments leading to execution and then black headlines to proclaim that Chessman was dead.

In London, the News Chronicle called the case a "squalid melodrama" that infected American justice with "an aura of sensationalism and cruelty."

Said an editorial: "No American can be proud of a man living 12 years in the condemned cell."

Polio Strikes Fifth Islander

Vancouver Island's fifth polio patient of the year Saturday joined three others who have been brought to Royal Jubilee Hospital for treatment.

Kenneth Beaubien, 13-year-old Chemainus boy suffering from paralytic polio, is described as in satisfactory condition. He is not in an iron lung.

Also reported in satisfactory condition at the hospital are Del Spaulding, also of Chemainus; Tony Gardner of Happy Valley, and Mrs. Pearl Hall of Nanaimo.

Bomarc Site Work Goes On

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Pearkes indicated in the Commons yesterday that preparation of two Bomarc sites in Canada will continue until at least the end of June.

Esquimalt Mill Rate Unchanged

There will be no increase in the Esquimalt mill rate this year, a pleased Reeve A. C. Wurtele announced last night after council completed its budget debate.

"Where in 1959 our mill rate of 39 was divided, 19 for schools and 20 for general levy," said the reeve, "this year it will be 19.6 for schools and 19.4 for general purposes."

"This may mean some reduction in the work done through the municipality this year, but in long consideration of the budget we felt the public, at a time of general increases in expenses, would be happy over a mill rate that went unchanged."

Misdial Killed Stay for Caryl

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A misdialled telephone number may have cost Caryl Chessman a stay of execution Monday.

Federal District Judge Louis Goodman was prepared to grant a 30-minute stay of execution but was told the pellets had just been dropped.

The judge said his secretary, Celeste Hickey, misdialed the San Quentin number, getting only four digits instead of five.

Whopper Starts King Fisherman Contest

A 38-pound spring, caught off Discovery Island Sunday afternoon by Bill Edlund, 2660 Killarney, took an early and substantial lead in the 1960 Daily Colonist King Fisherman contest. He was fishing

Desire Outlives Gargles Galore

By TERRY HAMMOND
Q-Day minus 18.

We have forewarned smoking before breakfast and for an hour after meals for three days now, and we are brushing our teeth as though preparing to do a master's thesis on enamel erosion.

The question is, is it getting any easier?

Or, putting it another way, is it getting any harder?

I find that brushing my teeth is getting easier but that

Cigaret Addict's Diary

My desire to smoke before breakfast and after meals is just about the same.

You could say I am gargling better, though.

My two-year-old daughter gargarles right alongside me every morning in a fine display of family solidarity. Of course she isn't quitting smoking like me. (She smokes less than a package a day so she figured it wasn't worth it.)

Several people who are going along with me on the Arthur King cure have said they like the idea of a 21-day build-up compared with the system of simply throwing the cigarettes away one day and doing it "cold turkey."

FIRST TIME

These people have all tried to kick the habit before, with what Mr. King would call "indifferent success."

I never did really try to stop smoking before—except once.

I quit at 10 o'clock one morning while trying to climb a small mountain in the interior of B.C. and resumed again at three in the afternoon.

SLIGHT DELAY

I would have resumed earlier except it took about an hour to climb back down the mountain to where I had thrown the package away and half an hour crawling around on my hands and knees through the underbrush trying to find it.

That pretty well wrapped up my quitting smoking as far as I was concerned until Arthur King came along.

A man tends to lose much of his conviction that he has mastered the world while crawling about on hands and knees looking for a cigaret on a mountainside.

James Bay District May Lose Firehall

By R. O. MARRION

City council will decide today if it is going to close the James Bay firehall and dismiss 14 firemen to save the taxpayers about $100,000.

If the firehall is closed, it will be over the strongest of protests from Fire Chief James Bayliss.

He told council yesterday that his force was now at a bare minimum, with only 19 or 20 men at a time available to fight fires, and that "if you are going to take the tools away from me I cannot do the job."

But council, bearing in mind the 11-per-cent wage increase an arbitration board gave firemen and policemen this year, seemed about evenly divided when it decided to sleep on the question.

HUMAN LIVES

Ald. Austin Curtis, who with Aldermen Hugh Ramsay and Mrs. Lily Wilson opposed cutting the force, said council should look at the proposal from the point of view of human lives—"I'd feel awfully badly if one or two people lost their lives as a result."

On the other hand, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, who proposed the cutback and was supported by Mayor Percy Scurrell, argued that "you can always get very sentimental about statements like that... We've got to be realistic about it."

HIGHLIGHTS

Among highlights of the debate: Fire Chief Bayliss said his force of 88 men, 76 of them actually fire-fighters, was down to rock-bottom; if there was a fire in a big hotel with "a lot of laddering to save people I don't know how I would do it," the James Bay pumper served the whole area south of Oak Bay Avenue and Pandora and was first equipment to arrive at big hotels, the Bapco paint plant, St. Ann's Academy, St. Joseph's Hospital.

"Picture in your minds Bapco going up in smoke and me arriving with 15 men," he said.

20 YEARS Mayor Scurrell argued that Bapco had operated for 20 years without a James Bay firehall.

He also told council the provincial government was not interested in whether or not the hall was kept open, and noted that Burnaby with nearly twice as many people had an 86-man force.

Ald. Elmer McEwen said that in another 10 years the fire department would be "eating up half the budget, and we can't afford that." He also held that "the insurance people should provide the fire protection. There's nothing in the Municipal Act to say we should provide it."

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow held that "we haven't been calling in the fire departments of the adjoining municipalities, and that shows we haven't needed them."

'Aunt Marys' Forced To Welfare?

B.C. Electric Makes Deal In Japan?

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sun says in a Hong Kong dispatch that the B.C. Electric Company is negotiating to buy plastic gas pipe and a bus fleet in Japan.

The newspaper quotes H. I. Purdy, executive vice-president of the company, in a statement made as the Vancouver Board of Trade off-shore mission, now touring Asia, left for Tokyo.

The paper says the bus deal alone would cost the company about $1,250,000.

"Purdy said buses and pipe made in Canada are about 50 per cent more expensive than Japanese," the newspaper says.

Eight-Storey Fall Survived

WINNIPEG (CP)—A woman survived an eight-storey fall from a downtown Winnipeg department store Monday when her descent was broken by an awning.

She was taken to hospital where her condition is described as critical. Her name has been withheld by police.

Mayor Walks Out, Council Goes On

ALBERNI — City council kept working last night after Mayor Mabel Anderson walked out when she failed to stop the meeting with a proclamation of adjournment.

Trouble arose when the mayor refused to put to a vote a second motion to receive and file a letter from the newly formed Alberni Voters' Association. She claimed the letter, announcing its formation and giving its bylaws, did not constitute city business.

When Ald. P. S. Barnett challenged her ruling she refused to put the question, "Shall the chair be sustained,"

she declared. "The mayor having made a proclamation you do not challenge the proclamation," she said.

Ald. C. M. Blair was called on by Ald. Barnett to put the vote of challenge which passed while the mayor was still upholding her right to end the meeting by proclamation.

Council refused to abide by her order and for several minutes the meeting degenerated into an argument over rights of the mayor in relation to wishes of the council.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

Do you like fairy tales? Then read the current best-selling novel "Trustee from the Toolroom" by Nevil Shute (Morrow). It's a lovely old-fashioned fairy tale, complete with a virtuous, smilingly innocent hero, a series of miraculous incidents, and an upbeat ending that promises that they'll live happily ever after.

Mr. Shute, who died a few months ago, left this charming novel as his swansong and it may well be the best thing he ever wrote. It's as simple as ABC and has all the old-fashioned virtues, plus the authentic Nevil Shute touch, which consists mainly in lots of aeronautics and engineering. (Shute spent the first half of his life as an aeronautical engineer, then switched to novel writing with spectacular success.)

Most Humdrum

The hero of this novel is Keith Stewart, a middle-aged Englishman who leads the shabbiest, most humdrum existence anyone can imagine. He has no money to speak of and makes a living by contributing to a weekly magazine, "The Miniature Mechanic," which has a worldwide readership of hobbyists and model builders.

One day—it's too complicated to tell how come—Stewart's brother-in-law is wrecked and killed on an uninhabited island path.

Nice Nest Egg

By the time he returns home, he has made a lot of new friends, brought back treasure for his little niece, earned a nice nest egg for himself of $17,000 and has at last seen the world.

It has turned out to be a lovely place, but then again it's nice to be home, too, and to putter again in the basement and figure out some new miniature mechanisms.

Second Music Week

Schools Keep Festival Busy

The music festival entered a busy second phase, the schools' section, yesterday.

There were three sessions each in brass, woodwind and band sections, in speech arts and in school choruses.

The morning brass and woodwind competition, adjudicated by William Cole of the University of Washington Music School, was featured by performances in class 152, brass solo, 18 and under.

EXCELLENT MARK
Two trumpets, a French horn, a slide trombone and a bass tuba entered the lists. Bruce Dunn of Victoria, playing horn, and Jim Ballard of Alberni, on the tuba, received the excellent mark of 93 each.

Class 153, woodwind solo, 18 and under, was also described by the adjudicator as "an outstanding class." The instruments were not quite as varied as in the corresponding brass section; there were three saxophones and one clarinet.

SAME INSTRUMENT
Keith Donaldson of Victoria just topped Harry Jakovic of Port Alberni, 87 to 86, both on the saxophone.

The speech arts division, morning and afternoon, was mostly concerned with young entrants.

A double success went to Deborah Mason, who scored 86 to win the 8-and-under class and 85 to finish second by one point in the humorous class, 10 and under.

SLIM MARGIN
The school choral classes, with 27 entries in all, varied only 11 marks between the highest and lowest gained.

Gun 'Emptied' at Blacks

VEREENING, South Africa (Reuters)—A white police sergeant said Monday he emptied his sub-machine-gun into a crowd of blacks at Sharpeville without hearing an order to shoot.

Sgt. J. O. Oosthuizen was testifying at an inquiry into the death of 72 Negroes who were cut down by police fire outside the Sharpeville police station near here March 21.

The sergeant said the crowd became "increasingly riotous and antagonistic" as it grew in size and there were shouts of: "Police dogs, we will kill you."

He said he emptied 20 to 25 rounds into the crowd, keeping his sub-machine-gun "fairly low" so that he would shoot the Negroes in the legs.

Under cross-examination he said he heard no order to open fire.

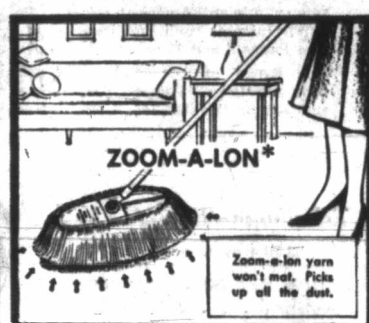

Another policeman at the inquiry said he opened fire with his rifle after being hit underneath the eye with a stone thrown from the crowd.

In Kimberley, the local chairman of the banned African National Congress was sentenced Monday to six lashes and 18 months in prison for inciting Negroes to burn their identity passes.

The chairman, John Lengo, and another man were also fined £100 pounds ($267) or six months' imprisonment for burning their own passes. Eight other persons were also fined £150 or 18 months in jail on similar charges.

Ten Swift Minutes End 12-Year Fight

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — Caryl Chessman's 12-year fight for life on death row ended in 10 swift minutes Monday in the gas chamber, where he died smiling at a red-haired woman.

Last words of the condemned sex criminal and convict, lipread through the gas chamber windows by witnesses, were in farewell to another woman, one of his lawyers.

NOT GUILTY
Before the 35-year-old prisoner took the last 13 steps into the death chamber, he told warden Fred Dickson he was not the red light bandit who forced two women out of cars in Los Angeles lovers' lanes in 1948 and made them perform acts of sex perversion.

These crimes, kidnapping for robbery with bodily harm, touched off worldwide interest as Chessman eight times won stays of execution.

FINAL APPEALS
Within minutes before the fatal potassium cyanide pellets dropped into acid in the gas chamber, Chessman lost three final appeals and a chance for a brief stay.

The California Supreme Court, which had three times voted against executive clemency, turned down two appeals in San Francisco and U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas in Washington also refused to intervene. Chessman's lawyer said he could show that someone else committed the crimes.

MARY ALICE SHAW
... cure impossible?

Victim's Mother:

'Great Tragedy But God's Will'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The mother of a girl who was kidnapped and attacked by Caryl Chessman and who is now in a mental institution said his execution was "just, but a great tragedy."

"It was God's will. It is all over now," said Mrs. Ruth Shaw, whose teenage daughter Mary Alice was submitted to sexual indignities by Chessman and later confined to Camarillo state hospital.

CARRIED OUT
"It is the law and the court's ruling has been carried out," she added.

Asked if she thought knowledge of Chessman's death might aid in her daughter's recovery, she said that was a decision for the doctors to make.

Mary Alice was confined to the mental hospital shortly after Chessman, as the "red light bandit," kidnapped her from a car in which she was seated with a date, tore off her clothes and sadistically abused her. This was in January, 1948.

Her mother says she never speaks of Chessman any more, and actually has talked little in recent years. Doctors are not certain she'll ever be cured.

Mary Alice, 17 at the time of the kidnap-rape, had graduated the previous June from a Catholic girls' high school in Los Angeles and was a student at a Catholic college.

Mrs. Shaw denied, as has been claimed by Chessman's attorneys, that her daughter had mental troubles before the incident.

Private Eye Tells All

What happens when an adventurous reporter and a Toronto investigator set out on an authentic "Night in the Life of a Private Eye?" What are these men really like and how do they operate? You'll find all the answers, plus some of their strange cases, in this week's big Star Weekly.

Chessman Dies Smiling

Federal district Judge Louis Goodman in San Francisco attempted to order a 30-minute stay to hear another writ, but the gas reaction had begun before his phone call reached the prison.

As four guards strapped him into the metal chair at 10:02 a.m. PDT, he spotted Eleanor Garner Black among 60 witnesses jammed outside.

Chessman's body was turned over to a San Rafael funeral parlor for probable cremation and private funeral services.

Chessman's personal witness, had interviewed him many times. He smiled at her and started to talk as the steel door swung shut on the soundproof chamber.

TELL ROSALIE
Mrs. Black read his lips as saying, "Tell Rosalie goodbye." Rosalie Asher, one of his three lawyers, was administrator of his estate.

As the first fumes arose, Chessman gave an inaudible chuckle, took a deep breath, and his head snapped back in the final reflex of death.

His smile vanishes. He grimaces but manages a deep breath.

His face with its hawk nose and its protruding lower lip goes back as though he was looking at the ceiling.

The first 15 seconds of the deadly hydrocyanic acid have blotted out his will. As a reasoning human being he already is dead.

Now Chessman's mouth falls wide open. His fingers twitch nervously.

The head darts involuntarily forward but falls back again. The mouth makes convulsive movements, as if to form a shouted word.

Now the head begins a slow descent. The broad shoulders of the man tremble. The diaphragm retches as if to expel the fumes. Beads of saliva drip from the open mouth.

There is still movement in the fingers. It is only after two more minutes that all movement ceases.

Mrs. Black read his lips as saying, "Tell Rosalie goodbye." Rosalie Asher, one of his three lawyers, was administrator of his estate.

Caryl's Last Letter

'I'm a Confessed Fool'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Caryl Chessman told in a letter written Sunday how he hoped to die "with dignity, without animal fear and without bravado. I owe that much to myself."

Newsman agreed Monday his prediction was accurate. "What impels me to write this letter is, because I earnestly believe more is involved than the death of one man," he wrote to a reporter friend. "I am writing it because I have heard humanity's voice raised in my behalf—and because I have seen too much of man-inflicted death."

BARBARISM
"I believe that before too many more years have passed we will realize the senseless tragedy and the witless futility of that relic of human barbarism, capital punishment, and that we will have the courage and the vision to eliminate it."

"I regard myself as neither hero nor martyr. On the contrary I am a confessed fool who is keenly aware of the nature and quality of his earlier rebellious years."

Chessman denied he was guilty, writing: "California convicted the wrong man. And it stubbornly refused to admit the possibility of its error, much less correct it. In time the world will have proof of its savage error. It will not be proud then of its deed."

Chessman wrote four books in his 12 years on death row. The first, "Cell 2455, Death Row," was a best-seller in many languages throughout the world.

Prime Ministers Meet

THE ninth Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Conference will open in London today under circumstances which may make it one of the most important of all such gatherings in timing, direction and consequences. The agenda was settled last week, not in the hard and fast way which precedes some international gatherings, but more informally as a list of subjects which by consent should be canvassed at the discussions of the several heads of state. In the circumstances of this year, the Commonwealth meeting may be concerned with some emergent business in addition to the long-range study of more general topics affecting the Commonwealth as a whole.

While it is not the custom of the conference to pass formal resolutions, there can be little doubt that there will be a frank discussion of what has been taking place in South Africa, to the concern of member nations in the group. That could prove one of the delicate corners of the agenda, and there may be others in connection with the swift changes taking place on the continent of Africa as a whole.

On its western front the conference no doubt will discuss the reorganization of trade practices in Europe, and the relation of Commonwealth lands to the Six and Seven groups respectively in the new economic set-up there.

Canada will be represented by Prime Minister Diefenbaker, whose restrained and moderate utterance on the South Africa civil revolt was well received in Commonwealth circles. What Mr. Diefenbaker stands for in the Commonwealth connection is nowhere in doubt, and in his own right he is as representative a Canadian as could be found to speak for this country at the distinguished gathering.

If the delegates now convening follow the course of their predecessors, there will be a good deal of open and informed discussion within the conference chamber, and relatively little to be said anywhere outside of it while the convention is on. The value of such an opportunity to the governments of the several Commonwealth nations can readily be understood.

There is a body of thought and a sphere of action in which this body of nations can think and act in unison without having to explain to each other why they do so. In an unsettled world, the Commonwealth is a steady and stabilizing force on the side of democratic ways and abiding concern for the peaceful and orderly progress of mankind.

Naval Occasions

STRETCHING over the next three weeks the RCN will celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Canadian Navy. Special events will mark this proud occasion, beginning with the consecration of the Queen's Color on Wednesday, and including service and public functions such as open-house day and observance of Battle of Atlantic Sunday. This week Defence Minister Peckham will take part in the celebrations and later the RCN will salute Governor-General Vanier when he arrives on his first vice-regal visit.

Coincident with the navy's golden anniversary has come news that Rear-Admiral H. S. Rayner, at present flag officer of the Pacific Command, will succeed Vice-Admiral H. G. DeWolf as next chief of naval staff. The latter is the highest post to which any naval officer might aspire, and the many friends here of Admiral Rayner will receive word of this appointment with interest and pleasure. As it happens Admiral DeWolf arrived yesterday for a week-long inspection visit, and will be able to see the 50th anniversary under way as well as greet his successor. As is the case with most senior officers of the RCN both of them have held appointments here and are well-known to the community.

It is an old naval maxim that destroyer captains make the best admirals, because of the resourcefulness, initiative and decisive qualities which such a command breeds. The RCN is full of destroyer captains for that is its specialty, and it is worth noting that in this capacity, aboard the Haida and the Huron respectively, Admirals DeWolf and Rayner won special renown during the epic Channel patrols of the last war. That was the period of the high posts which subsequently became theirs.

Admiral DeWolf retires after a busy term at the helm of the Canadian Navy, during a period of stress occasioned by the shifting complex of defence strategy. He has served his country with fidelity, spending no fewer than 42 years in royal blue. Admiral Rayner is the younger man and has the peak years of his navy career now approaching. Those who know him and his calm competency have every confidence that he will fill the post of chief of naval staff admirably and well. Canada is fortunate in the quality of its most senior naval officers, and in this transition it is a case of one distinguished admiral succeeding another.

That Spring-Cleaned Look

ONE of simplest yet most important drives of the year in Victoria is the annual exhortation of the Junior Chamber of Commerce to home owners to apply paint brush and energy to tidying up of their individual properties. Nothing sets a community off to better advantage than a clean-swept look. Refurbishing of outbuildings, fence lines and steps, and a coat or two of paint over worn exterior surfaces of dwellings and other buildings can make all the difference in the world to the appearance of the community as a whole.

This year the Clean-up, Paint-up campaign should have a double appeal. Even the most modest reclamation of time-worn premises can set in motion a considerable volume of occasional work needed in the community. Such efforts conserve dwelling values, extend the lifetime of older buildings, refurbish the whole appearance of the city and, as we have said, give work to those who need it. Properly viewed, that is community effort.

Mexico Cast Its Vote

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Direct talks between heads of state don't always pay immediate dividends. A case in point is Prime Minister Diefenbaker's recent visit to Mexico City.

The visit had an important connection with the international conference at Geneva on the law of the sea, at which Canada had a big stake in a proposal to fix territorial and fishing jurisdictions.

The Canadian proposal was that each country have territorial rights for six miles from its shores and that it have exclusive fishing rights for a further six miles beyond that.

For two years, Canadian diplomats worked hard to line up support for the plan. To accommodate American objections principally, Canada agreed to an amendment that would have postponed for 10 years the application of the fishing jurisdiction in the outer six miles where historic fishing interests of more than one country were involved.

But even then it was evident that the balloting would be close. So when Mr. Diefenbaker went to Mexico six days before the plan was to be voted on, it was with the hope of changing the Mexican government's attitude. For years Mexico has claimed a nine-mile territorial jurisdiction in the seas around it.

The prime minister knew there was no hope of Mexico backing the Canada-U.S. law of the sea proposal. But he did have hopes of getting the Mexicans to abstain.

Success in this mission would have resulted in adoption of the Canada-U.S. plan, which failed by a single vote to get the required two-thirds majority to make it law. Mexico was among the nations that voted against it.

Mr. Diefenbaker is understood to have pressed President Lopez Mateos to abstain. But his plea fell on deaf ears.

The Mexican president, who has served only one-third of his six-year term, is said to have informed Mr. Diefenbaker that the internal political situation in Mexico made it impossible for him to instruct Mexico's representative to abstain.

He is said to have argued that it would be political suicide for his party even to abstain from voting on a proposal that would have resulted in reducing Mexico's territorial sea to six miles from nine.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

THERE was a picture in a paper the other day of the small Princess Anne, and the caption said she was just like other little girls; she had a bit of a tummy.

Other little girls can have a tummy or not and nobody pays any attention, but princesses are spotlighted from birth to death.

However, by the alchemy that transforms girlish frames into svelte young figures as they grow up, a bit of a tummy will be of no worry to present-day Anne.

The battle of the bulge will not be hers for years to come, if at all.

It is a sad battle this, one that seems endless if diet schedules and food ads are any criterion, and my heart goes out to feminine folk. Mind you, my own sex does not escape embonpoint but men are less particular than women about their contours.

More's the pity, as a matter of fact. A tummy on a man can be much less endearing than its equivalent elsewhere.

It's an interesting word is tummy. Shrinking as we do from plain speaking, it's a genteel way of referring to the proclivity of a certain part of the anatomy. Other more direct words are in the dictionary and really quite respectable too, but we are queasy about the use of language.

You would not talk about whales having a tummy, for instance, not even the one that allegedly swallowed Jonah, but happily humans are not whales if on occasion some of them tend to look like whales.

Anyway, except that a woman is advised that the road to a man's heart is through his stomach, not his tummy, tummy it is. There is a light touch to this word that mollifies the social code.

Talking about tummies, therefore, in general and not just those of little girls—which are only temporary—these do obtrude on the scene and often enough to their owners' regret. If the tummy is too tummy-like more than the owner may be perturbed. Personally the proposition is academic for yours truly since he is rather of Pharaoh's lean breed, but the bend of his knees and of his shoulders leads him to wonder if in the end he will not resemble a cork-screw.

And it is a matter of debate whether a bit of a tummy is not preferable after all. A corkscrew is scarcely a thing of svelte beauty.

But if males eschew battling against the bulge represented by tummies, being too lazy, they are not thereby absolved. Indeed no, and particularly when in uniform. A uniform to be the cynosure of all eyes, as the quotation has it, should encase a slim, litesome figure, but alas this often is denied by observable fact.

Somewhat, too, when a tunic is convex rather than concave the tummy is more pronounced than when a mere civilian suit sticks out instead of modestly holding itself back.

Men do little to help their suits reduce the embonpoint, either. Military has all kinds of secret aids which are beyond mention in an open forum like this one, and all that need be said about them is that they do her credit.

At least she never ceases trying to adorn obdurate nature in order that the passing scene will be enhanced.

Ah, well, to get back to the little princess who, like other small maidens, has developed a bit of a tummy. It's only a bit of one, remember, and it will soon disappear. And no doubt this will be duly reported in the public prints when the transformation occurs.

Sometimes other little girls must be glad they are not little princesses.

Reports from Ottawa

LONG years ago, in 1215, Magna Carta made a declaration, and it has been the essence of the British peoples ever since, "To no man will we deny, to no man will we delay, justice."

Those words appear in the records of Parliament of Feb. 17, 1955, under the name of a noted champion of rights, John Diefenbaker.

"What a travesty of justice it is," Diefenbaker cried, that the immigration department should refuse a person admission to Canada "and refuse to let the individual know their reasons for making a decision."

On Aug. 8, 1956, E. Davis Fulton asserted in the Commons that "When an applicant should be informed and given an opportunity . . . to meet the objections or grounds upon which the department has based its adverse decision."

This MP, who less than a year later became Canada's minister of justice, added that a person denied admission to the country should not be left "groping around in the dark, not knowing what case it was he or she was obliged to meet."

"It is extraordinary," Fulton said, "how when it suits the department or the minister . . . (it or he says) the information is confidential or that the question of security is involved."

On April 7, 1960, Miss Irene Rebrin, under order of deportation, told reporters in Vancouver that she did not know the reasons, and wished the immigration department would disclose them.

That same day Immigration Minister Fairclough told the Commons that "on the basis of classified (i.e., confidential) information available to us, we are satisfied on security grounds that the deportation order should not be interfered with."

By April 13 Miss Rebrin's lawyers had appealed the deportation order to the courts. On that day Harold Winch, the socialist MP, asked Prime Minister Diefenbaker:

"Has the person involved been informed as to the substance of the charges against her?"

Diefenbaker replied: "When a question of security arises, and when a review has been made of the evidence, or the basis for the conclusion in that regard, I cannot go further, in the public interest . . . Our responsibility to the national interest is paramount."

Justice Minister Fulton's contribution to the exchange was an effort to convince Speaker Michener that Winch's question was out of order, and therefore should not be allowed.

Going back again to Feb. 17, 1955, one finds Diefenbaker, MP, in a critical mood over a speech delivered by the deputy minister of Immigration, Laval Fortier.

On April 26, 1960, Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced that Fortier had been appointed chairman of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

The timing of Fortier's departure from the deputy ministership, in the middle of the Rebrin case, raises speculation that the two events are not unconnected. It is clear that the Rebrin case, no matter what the rights of it, was ineptly handled by the departmental brass from Mrs. Fairclough on down. But whatever Fortier's shortcomings, it was not he who made those ringing pleas for justice in 1955, and denied them in 1960.

On the Toss of a Coin

By GREGORY CLARK

ONE of my cronies is a man constitutionally incapable of making up his mind. Indecision is not only natural to him, he seems to delight in it.

His usual course, when faced with a decision, is to toss a coin. "Heads I do," he says, firmly, "tails I don't."

Up goes the coin and comes down heads. "Two out of three," he says, quickly, tossing the coin.

It comes down heads again. "Three out of five," he exclaims, anxiously.

It comes down heads once more, deciding the matter, as you might say, decisively. It means he does what he was doubtful of, beyond any doubt.

"Did I say heads I don't," he asks, "or heads I do?"

By this time, you realize that the poor fellow has made up his mind backwards. He really didn't want to do whatever it was. But it took all the hocus pocus of tossing a coin, weighing on that, and then defrauding himself at the end, to make him realize his decision.

And I may add that when he accepts the decision, it is with the darkest misgivings.

Religion In Politics

By MARQUIS CHILDS

IN Senator Hubert Humphrey's home state of Minnesota there is a salutary example of how little religion means in voter choice. It has relevance to the West Virginia primary where ugly manifestations of prejudice threaten more than the fate of one candidate or the other in the Democratic contest.

Senator John F. Kennedy seems to have been saying, until his speech to the American Society of Newspaper Editors, that the citizens of West Virginia owed it to themselves to vote for him to prove they were not bigoted. Some of his more ardent supporters have been trying to make it appear that a vote for Humphrey is a vote for the Ku Klux Klan. This is bound to harm Kennedy at least as much as it may Humphrey.

With the intervention of West Virginia's egregious Senator Robert Byrd, Humphrey is embarrassed by the implication that he is merely a stalking horse for the "stop Kennedy" movement. By defeating Kennedy he will open the way to a compromise choice at the convention.

Eugene McCarthy is the other senator from Minnesota. He was the first Catholic elected in a statewide election as governor or senator.

In Minnesota the proportion of Catholics to the population is about 30 per cent. It is not true, according to McCarthy, that more than half the Democrats in his state are Catholics. What is striking about McCarthy's election in 1958 is the small part that religion played in a state in which the Lutheran population is in many counties well over 50 per cent.

Congressional Quarterly has done a careful and detailed statistical analysis of the Minnesota returns that show just this. While independent analysts who were asked to go over the CQ material found that a Catholic "pull" toward McCarthy did exist of approximately twice the Lutheran "drag," it was a minor factor in his defeat of the Republican incumbent, Senator Edward J. Thye. The CQ conclusions, based on their analysis of the returns county by county, are so significant that they are quoted here:

"The foregoing evidence of the play of religion as a factor in the voting in the McCarthy-Thye race should not cause sight to be lost of the impressive fact that despite any Catholic 'pull' and despite any putative Lutheran 'drag,' McCarthy still trailed behind the Lutheran (Governor Orville) Freeman and the Congregationalist Humphrey in all but a few of the heavily Catholic districts and that he led the popular Lutheran Thye in many of the heavily Lutheran counties."

"Thus although there seems to be evidence of a religious influence on the voting, it is to be measured at most in the swing of two or three percentage points."

"In this respect the study tends to confirm the thesis that religion as such is one of the lesser influences on voting behavior."

In short, in Minnesota McCarthy was chosen on his personal merits and on party preference. It was a choice made in the American tradition. In that tradition religious prejudice has, except for sporadic outbursts of virulence, played little part. In five terms in the House McCarthy had established himself with a majority of the voters who cast their ballots for him without respect to religion. He won by a majority of 53.19 per cent of the total vote; so that, even if the CQ estimate of the percentage influence of religion at two or three points worked wholly in his favor, he would have in all probability won in any event.

McCarthy has gone into West Virginia to speak for Senator Humphrey as co-chairman of Humphrey's national presidential campaign committee. But he is concerned over more than the outcome in that primary. He sees the increasing bitterness threatening not only both candidates but their party as well.

This last might be, as it was in 1924 and 1928, an incidental effect of the political wars with no lasting damage. But the fear this time is that it could create a new and deep schism in American life, and just as unity of national purpose is more vital than ever before in our history.

Kennedy has been saying that if as a citizen he was accepted to serve his country in the navy with no questions asked then he should not be barred from the presidency by reason of his religion.

But a great many other citizens who served their country are in effect barred from the presidency—by race, color, sex.

Can a Negro be president?

Foggy Socialism

The new B.C. CCF president, Owen Jones, said, "Instead of fighting with each other we should fight as a unit against a common enemy, and that is capitalism as it is represented in the present Social Credit government." A Fabian once said that socialism was "a bright light on a foggy day." Stalin's socialism involved capitalism with most of the capital owned by the state. Hitler's socialism also involved capitalism but with the corporate state. Mussolini's socialism left profits intact. Now we seem to have a CCF socialism involving capitalism without the Soviets presiding over the state and only at present.

There is a real peculiar concept of socialism kicking around these days though. It encompasses social ownership of the productive apparatus of the earth or production for use according to needs. It precludes the necessity of the state, of money, wages, ulcers, wars and cops and robbers. In this country it is promulgated only by the socialist party of Canada.

Wrong Rahman

This morning (May 1) my wife drew my attention to the caption "Malaya's Rahman" under the first photograph of seven premiers and one president now gathering in London. The photograph in question is in fact of "Malaya's Rahman" in one sense. It is a portrait of the late Sir Abdul Rahman, Ruler of Negri Sembilan and elected in 1957 first Paramount Ruler (Yang di-Pertuan Agong) of the newly independent Federation of Malaya. The Agong died in March or April of this year and has been succeeded by the Sultan of Selangor. (It is an elective process, a modern equivalent of the Holy Roman Empire.)

The present prime minister of the Federation of Malaya also has the name Abdul Rahman. His title is Tunku (Prince) Abdul Rahman. He is a "Prince" because he belongs to the royal house of Kedah. But in all essentials he is a parliamentarian.

As a postscript may I add that our family spent five years in the Federation and so have a start on you in matters Malayan!

I have read in an item in your paper re free pork distribution that pensioners in Victoria did not know of its being in distribution. Will you publish the fact that the provincial secretary of this organization has received enough application forms from the Vancouver office to supply all our 78 branches with one.

These have now gone forward to our respective secretaries in various districts stretching from Terrace in the north to Ladner on the American border—also to all Island branches from Campbell River to Victoria.

Sin City Find Doubted

No Evidence
Say Officials

AMMAN, Jordan (Reuters)—Jordanian officials have cast doubt on the claim of an American exploration team to have found the biblical cities of Sodom and Gomorrah at the bottom of the Dead Sea.

Diadeen Rifai, acting director of Jordan's antiquity department, said Saturday the claim was doubted because no photographic or other physical proof of the discovery had been submitted.

Rev. Ralph Baney, a Kansas City Baptist minister, reported to the antiquities department last week that he had found the two "lost cities of sin" near the Lisan promontory at the southern end of the Dead Sea.

Baney, director of the Holy Land Christian Approach Mission, headed a team of four Americans and three Jordanians.

Apartheid Showdown Faces London Parley

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Macmillan conferred with the Commonwealth's Afro-Asian leaders Monday in a move designed to avert an impending showdown over South Africa.

The Commonwealth prime ministers' meeting opens to day and in one public statement after another many leaders of the multiracial community have said South Africa's racial troubles must be discussed.

By all standards of protocol and tradition, the internal affairs of one Commonwealth country are never brought up at these meetings. However, it has become obvious that South Africa's apartheid policies will dominate the conference.

Macmillan saw Dr. Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, Rukun Abdul Rahman of Malaya and Prime Minister Nehru of India, all three of whom have bitterly denounced South Africa's racial segregation.

Macmillan later met Eric Louw, South Africa's minister for external affairs, who is deputizing for Premier Verwoerd, then saw Sir Roy Welensky, premier of the South Africa has threatened Nehru Monday made one of to walk out if the discussion goes too far. Macmillan report-ly has been trying to per- suade Louw not to do so.

The Malayan premier has said he will immediately and officially bring up the issue today, when he replies to Mac- millan's address of welcome. Diefenbaker joined in the criti- cism when he said in a lunch- con speech that "the Common- aside for informal discussions.

They attended an elaborate banquet at Windsor Castle on the eve of the formal opening of the Commonwealth conference.

Other guests included the Queen Mother, the Princess Royal, the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, the Duchess of Kent and Princess Alexandra.

The Commonwealth vase, which stands two feet high, formed the central decoration for the banquet table. It was given to the Queen to commemorate her coronation and bears emblems of the Commonwealth countries.

Banquet Leaders Meet Antony

LONDON (UPI) — The Commonwealth prime ministers and their wives dined last night with the world's most famous bride and groom-to-be, Princess Margaret and Antony Armstrong-Jones.

They attended an elaborate banquet at Windsor Castle on the eve of the formal opening of the Commonwealth conference.

Shut 'Atomic Club'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The four-power "atomic club" should close up shop before another nation tries to join, Fritz Erler, deputy parliamentary leader of the German Social Democratic Party, said Monday.

"The four atomic powers are four too many," he said. Possession as well as production of nuclear arms should be prohibited.

Mr. Erler, 47, said it would be easier to control the situation while there were only four members, rather than waiting until there were 10.

The charge against Johnson was dismissed after defence counsel Larry Hill pointed out there was no evidence against his client.

Can you find 10 traffic hazards in this picture?

Look sharp! This quiz checks more than the acuteness of your vision. It also tests your judgment of what's right and wrong on the road. Look again—then rate yourself against the list. But keep in mind that perceiving a traffic hazard is not enough. A good driver is always prepared to take instant action to avoid trouble.

Like all good citizens, Shell is interested in safety. We urge you to be alert, drive carefully, know the rules—and obey them. Remember: about 75% of all accidents are caused by the driver—not the car.

(Each hazard is located by letter and by number. For example, I-5 indicates the location of the car in the middle traffic lane in the lower center of the picture.)

- 1 Car passing on three-lane highway near crest of hill (I-5, lower center)
- 2 Girl in open car practically sitting in driver's lap (H3, lower left)
- 3 School bus stopping to pick up children (D8, right center)
- 4 Motorcycles weaving in traffic (E8, right center)
- 5 Red flag is missing on pipes in truck (F9, right center)
- 6 Car parked at roadside stand not completely off road (E7, center)
- 7 Car pushing stalled car into highway traffic (C9, upper right)
- 8 Man crossing road with packages (B8, upper right)
- 9 Driver thoughtlessly backing out into traffic (B7, upper center)
- 10 Two cars racing on side road (B3, upper left)

Troops Use Rifle Butts On Students

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—Turkish students clashed twice with troops Monday in anti-government demonstrations staged with an eye on the Istanbul meeting of NATO foreign ministers. A group of lawyers joined the freedom campaign.

Turkish infantry, operating under martial law regulations, closed in and broke up the outbursts against Premier Adnan Menderes' regime, one by a group of 3,000 within sight of the new city hall that is the NATO conference site. Scores were arrested.

"Freedom! Freedom!" was the marching cry of the demonstrators, who defied both martial law regulations against public assemblies and a government threat that arms would be used against any further disorders in the movement against Menderes, now in its fifth day.

The troops did not fire. However, they used rifle butts, muscle power and threats of bayonets to disperse the masses and nab the more violent demonstrators. Two spotter planes and a helicopter helped them to keep a check on the streets.

Students protesting Menderes' strong-arm rule and military forces met at a broad plaza near the city hall in the first incident of the day.

Duchess 'Poisonous Liar'

LONDON (AP)—The beautiful Duchess of Argyll was described yesterday as "a poisonous liar" in a defamation suit brought by her former social secretary.

The epithet was applied by a lawyer for the plaintiff, Mrs. Yvonne Macpherson, who charges that the blonde duchess unjustly accused her of selling gossip to newspapers about the stormy married life of the duchess and her duke.

Mrs. Macpherson, widow of a British general, was social secretary to the Argylls in 1954 and 1955. In 1956, she left to fulfil a similar role for the Marchioness of Dufferin.

She testified her differences with the 46-year-old Duchess of Argyll started in April, 1956, when the Argylls were having matrimonial trouble.

"I told her that she had a very tolerant and charming husband, but that she might have found him boring at times—all wives did so from time to time."

"I said it would be a good thing if she did not continue to go out in the evenings with boy friends, but stay at home more and keep her husband company.

Mrs. Macpherson said she also told the duchess it would be wise to quit making snide remarks about the Scottish Clan Campbell, of which the duke is hereditary chief.

"Being a Scot," she explained, "I understand how this could rile anyone."

Ministers Discuss Arms

ISTANBUL, Turkey (CP)—NATO ministers discussed disarmament Monday in a city bristling with steel-helmeted troops and tanks.

Police clashed with some 2,000 demonstrators defying martial law as the NATO delegates arrived at new city hall for the opening session of the 15-nation meeting.

Reuters news agency reported the NATO foreign ministers were expected to cut short their three-day meeting by one day after quick agreement on Western policy. They were believed ready to wrap up their discussions with a final communique today summing up the West's approach to the East-West summit conference in Paris May 16.

Closing ranks for the summit meeting, the ministers sought to reach solid agreement on such prime subjects as disarmament and Germany.

Q-Day—Worst Is Already Over

By ARTHUR KING

Now comes Q-Day itself. Don't work yourself into a lather thinking how tough it's going to be; think of how much excitement the next few days hold for you! Remember, it's not going to be tough.

And remember what we said before—don't make a big deal of this last day of smoking. Smoke as much as you want to up until an hour before bedtime, throw the rest of your cigarettes away, drink your morning juice at bedside as usual—then go to sleep.

Wake up! You've got nothing to do but have fun today as you begin to feel better and have more time and money to spend. You haven't been smoking until an hour after breakfast for three weeks now; that much of the habit is already broken.

To tell the truth, the worst is already over.

When the time comes for that after-breakfast smoke we're going to start taking precautions to make sure that no craving starts and that no nervousness occurs. This will be done partly by drug substitutes, partly by your own "psychotherapy."

Your schedule:

On awakening: fruit juice. Breakfast: take the first pill, antihistamine or phenobarbital, to forestall any nervousness, read list of reasons, oral hygiene as usual after eating; one hour after breakfast: take one lozenge to ease the throat discomfort you have thought of as "craving"; two hours after breakfast: take one "Kwits" to sustain your throat condition, make notes on data sheet.

Lunch: oral hygiene as usual; one hour after lunch: take one pill, read list; two hours after lunch: take one lozenge; three hours after lunch: take one "Kwits," make notes.

Dinner: oral hygiene as usual; one hour after dinner: take one pill, read list; two hours after dinner: take one lozenge; three hours after dinner: take one "Kwits," make notes.

Bedtime: take one pill with juice, read list, make sure list, juice and one tablet (caffeine or dexydrine) are readily available at bedside. Sleep like a log.

(This is the eighth of a series of articles by psychologist Arthur King showing how even the heaviest smokers can quit the habit without distress.)

Normalcy Is What We're After

SECOND DAY: Upon awakening take your caffeine tablet with your juice and read your list.

The pills (antihistamine or phenobarbital) are in the nature of sedatives; they counteract, to an almost exact degree, the jittery effects which would ordinarily ensue upon tobacco withdrawal. The tablets (caffeine or dexydrine) are, on the other hand, stimulants and serve to lull you out of your mildly drugged sleep in a hurry during those crucial few minutes when your frontal lobes and will power are functioning at their lowest efficiency.

The goal achieved at this stage is normalcy, not depression or excitement.

Today is to be exactly the same as yesterday except that you will eliminate your first sedative pill. You won't need it; these drugs are slightly cumulative in effect, and you'll be even calmer than you were yesterday at the same time.

Be sure to read your list and continue your data sheet. Don't forget the all-important "suppression" technique. The notion of smoking, or "trying on, the imaginary feel of a cigarette for size," is taboo.

Your schedule:

On awakening: take one caffeine tablet with fruit juice, read list of reasons.

Breakfast: oral hygiene as usual after eating; one hour after breakfast: take one lozenge; two hours after breakfast: take one "Kwits," make notes.

Lunch: oral hygiene as usual; one hour after lunch: take one pill, read list; two hours after lunch: take one lozenge; three hours after lunch: take one "Kwits," make notes.

Dinner: oral hygiene as usual; one hour after dinner: take one pill, read list; two hours after dinner: take one lozenge; three hours after dinner: take one "Kwits," make notes.

Bedtime: take one pill with juice, read list, make sure list, juice and one tablet (caffeine or dexydrine) are readily available at bedside. Sleep like a log.

THIRD DAY:—exactly the same as the second day except that you will eliminate your after-lunch sedative pill—for the same reason as before; you won't need it, and we're beginning to "taper you off" the drugs just as we tapered you off the cigarette smoking.

Your schedule:

On awakening: take one caffeine tablet with fruit juice, read list.

Breakfast: oral hygiene as usual after eating; one hour after breakfast: take one lozenge; two hours after breakfast: take one "Kwits," make notes.

Lunch: oral hygiene as usual; one hour after lunch: take one lozenge; three hours after lunch: take one "Kwits," make notes.

Dinner: oral hygiene as usual; one hour after dinner: take one pill, read list; two hours after dinner: take one lozenge; three hours after dinner: take one "Kwits," make notes.

Bedtime: take one pill with juice, read list, make sure list, juice and one tablet (caffeine or dexydrine) are readily available at bedside. Sleep like a log.

FOURTH DAY:—Everything the same as before except that after-dinner pill: don't take it. You should be fairly astonished by now that things have been so easy. Are you noting all this down on your data sheet? None of us can possibly know in advance what may turn out to be important in the psychology of addiction, so put everything down—no matter how irrelevant or how downright embarrassing and silly it might sound!

One of the items that consistently showed up on the data sheets in the early experiments was the first "thrill" experienced. It usually runs: "I really am going to make it!" or "I've got it made at last! What a relief!"

Stick to the system though. You've got a while to go yet.

Your schedule:

On awakening: take one caffeine tablet with fruit juice, read list of reasons.

Breakfast: oral hygiene as usual after eating; one hour after breakfast: take one "Kwits," make notes.

Lunch: oral hygiene as usual; two hours after lunch: take one "Kwits," make notes.

Dinner: oral hygiene as usual; two hours after dinner: take one "Kwits," make notes.

Bedtime: take one pill with juice, read list, make sure list, juice and one tablet (caffeine or dexydrine) are readily available at bedside. Sleep like log.

FIFTH DAY:—You won't need any sedation at all today. Eliminate your bedtime pills and you're off the drugs as well as the tobacco.

Not only do you not need further sedation because of its cumulative effect, but the physical and psychological conditions favorable to withdrawal tremors are beginning to subside.

This doesn't mean that your organism (including your psychology) is altogether back to normal, however. Just keep on going from day to day.

You might weight yourself today just to test our prediction that you won't gain weight during the program in spite of the fact that you're wolfing down that delicious food three times a day.

The Big Nut

When Ingemar Johansson dropped the Hammer of Thor on Floyd Patterson's comely conk last June, gate receipts came to $407,145.77 after taxes. The knockout was sensation, though not the contest, and if the two had been re-matched in September it is altogether possible that the second show would have drawn better than the first.

However, things began coming out of the woodwork. In the untidy mess of investigations, law suits, personal feuds, and prosecutions that followed, the fights and the fighters were almost forgotten. Perhaps there is some undiscovered promotional genius in the firm called Feature Sports, Inc., who can whump up a million-dollar gate for the re-match on June 20, but there is nothing in the record to support such a fancy.

Any sound businessman would consider it unrealistic to count on collecting more than $400,000 net through the box office.

Closed-circuit television, domestic radio, and film rights on the second fight have been sold for a guarantee of $700,000. This is only a minimum, and the income from these sources could be much greater. However, only $700,000 is assured; it is the only figure that can be used safely in drawing up a prospectus.

This raises a question: How in the name of Tex Rickard can the promoters expect to get off the nut?

The Promoter's Mite

In another day, Tex or Mike Jacobs or Jim Norris would have been sitting pretty as a lay bird on an anticipated gross of $1,100,000. These are different times, though, and different promoters.

When articles were signed recently in the New York Boxing Commission offices, it was announced that the fighters would divide 50 per cent of the live gate evenly. With a net of $400,000, this would leave $200,000 for Feature Sports, Inc.

It was announced further that Johansson was to receive 35 per cent of closed circuit TV, radio, and movies. In addition, Ingemar demanded all the income from Swedish radio and Scandinavian film distribution, so Patterson's share of "ancillary" rights in this country was put at 50 per cent to give him an even break with the Swede. (In return bouts after a title has changed hands, it is customary to split the fighters' swag down the middle.)

This means the promoters are giving away 85 per cent of the guaranteed $700,000. The 15 per cent remaining comes to $105,000. Thus all Feature Sports, Inc., can count on with reasonable confidence is $305,000 from gate and ancillary rights.

Please Pass the Soap

Feature Sports, Roy Cohn's group, got into the act by buying the return bout contract from Rosenzohn Enterprises, Inc., promoters of the first match. The price quoted was $225,000.

It was then necessary to buy and dissolve Floyd Patterson Enterprises, Inc., to which closed circuit rights for the re-match had been assigned by Rosenzohn Enterprises. The payment in this transaction has been described as "a substantial sum." Conjecture in fight circles places it at $100,000 or thereabouts.

If these figures are substantially correct, then Feature Sports has a net of $325,000 going in, before the promotion begins. It seems altogether inconceivable that promotional costs—salaries, Polo Grounds rent, ring-side seating construction, advertising, publicity, training camps, the printing of tickets, the supporting card, fees to officials, and so on—could come to less than $100,000.

All this adds up to $425,000 on the debit side, against $305,000 in anticipated income. With a net gate of $300,000, the promoters' take would increase to $355,000, or $70,000 under estimated expense.

Well, there's been a lot of yelling about the need to scrub up boxing. Maybe it'll start with the promoters taking a bath.

Pirates, White Sox Stopped; Giants, Indians Challenging

All winning streaks must end, and they did yesterday for the major-league baseball leaders — Pittsburgh Pirates, who reached nine in a row Sunday, and Chicago White Sox, who followed a four-game losing streak with a five-game winning spurge.

For the Pirates, the man who did the damage was Ron by taking Milwaukee Braves, 5-0, behind the four-hit pitching of Mike McCormick. The 21-year-old southpaw is now 3-0 and the most reliable pitcher on the Giants' staff at the moment.

Cincinnati Reds stopped a skid and dropped Los Angeles Dodgers into fifth place with a 6-5 win at Los Angeles.

INDIANS STREAK
Moving up to tie were the Cleveland Indians, who made five in a row after dropping five of their first seven games by sneaking by Washington Senators, 3-2, behind Gary Bell's six-hit pitching.

They pounced on Score in the first inning for three runs, knocked Don Ferrarese out of the box in a five-run fourth inning, and then added three more runs in the sixth for an 11-6 triumph.

Arnold Portocarrero allowed but one run in five relief innings to gain credit for the win.

On Sunday, the Orioles cracked through for six runs after two were out in the fourth inning to beat the New York Yankees, 9-5, in a game featured by manager Casey Stengel's wrong-guessing on pitcher changes.

Kline settled down after a shaky start which had him trailing by 3-0 at one time and justified manager Solly Hemus' confidence with five straight scoreless innings. Meanwhile, the Cards pecked away at ex-teammate Harvey Haddix to tie with two runs in the seventh and win it in the ninth.

Burnley Takes Championship

LONDON (AP) — Burnley defeated Manchester City, 2-1, Monday and won the English Soccer League championship with one of the last kicks of the season—a finish that ranked with the best in the history of the 72-year-old competition.

It was Burnley's last game of the season. Wolverhampton Wanderers, leading the standings before Monday night, completed their 42-match program Saturday.

Wolves led Burnley, the team that has been picked to represent English soccer in the New York tournament starting later this month, by one point. Burnley had to win Monday night to grab the championship.

A crowd of 60,000 turned out at Manchester to watch the match that decided who took the championship and went into the money-spinning European Cup next season.

Burnley got the inspiration of a three-minute goal through left winger Brian Pilkington. That was the one that decided

The Lone Winner

None of the four Victoria XIs which qualified for play in the annual B.C. minor soccer "Tournament of Champions" managed to win, or even to score, but Robin Jeffrey, 15-year-old goalkeeper for Britannia Legion was voted the "Soccer Cup" as the outstanding player. His club lost, 1-0, to Nanaimo Southern Kiwanis in Division III final, but it was no fault of Brian's, who was brilliant in defeat. Victoria's fourth loss came Sunday when Eagles were beaten, 2-0, in Division II final. (Photo by W. A. Boucher.)

Chandler Pitches Neat Softball Win

Bill Chandler allowed just four hits Monday night and became the first pitcher to go the distance during the new season as Morrisons romped to a 10-2 Victoria Senior Men's Softball League win over Pro-Pats.

Opening of the Heywood Avenue Park division took place Sunday with an afternoon-evening doubleheader. Navy powered its way to an 8-1 win over Maycocks in the afternoon game while Chinese Students thumped MacNutt's Grocery 15-7 at night.

Play continues tonight at 6:30 with MacNutt's playing Maycocks.

City Cyclist Island Champ

Ernie Hills of Victoria Motorcycle Club overcame an early lead held by Vancouver's Dayton McKenzie and went on to win the annual Vancouver Island scrambles championship held Sunday at Pedder Bay.

A crowd of 1,200 watched Hills catch McKenzie midway through the race. McKenzie also finished in second place in the 1959 race.

Harvey Again Voted Leading Defenceman

MONTREAL—Doug Harvey, rated by many as the greatest defenceman in hockey history, has been announced as the winner of the Norris Trophy for the fifth time since it was put up for competition.

The trophy, along with a $1,000 award from the league, goes each season to the defenceman voted by sports-writers to be the best in the National Hockey League.

Red Kelly won it in 1954. Harvey won it the next four years, then it went to teammate Tom Johnson last year.

This year, the 35-year-old Harvey was once again a peerless defence leader for Montreal Canadiens. He was a runaway winner, getting 129 points in the balloting while runner-up Al Stanley of Toronto got 42.

Marcel Pronovost (30), Pierre Plante (33), Johnson (32), Bill Gadsby (22), Bob Armstrong (12), Doug Mohns (8), Carl Brewer (5) and Tim Horton and Elmer Vasko (1 each) were other players to get points.

Hal Laycoe to Leave For New Hockey Job

By JIM TANG

Hal Laycoe's stay in Victoria, as expected, is to last through only the one Western Hockey League season.

The former National Hockey League defenceman, who served as manager-coach at New Westminster for three years before coming to Victoria last year to manage and coach the Cougars, said yesterday he had accepted another hockey job and would be leaving the city shortly after the present school term is over.

PORTLAND?

Laycoe declined to state where his new base of operations will be but it is practically certain that if he remains in the WHL that it will be as manager and coach of the new Portland entry, scheduled to make its WHL debut next season.

He had also received an offer to continue his connection with Victoria owner Jim Piggott, who is trying to win the right to operate a WHL club in Los Angeles next season. However, Piggott can not be certain of this at least until the annual league meeting later this month and the possibility exists that he may continue to operate in Victoria.

In view of this and the fact that Laycoe knows now that he is leaving the city it seems certain that he has severed his connection with Piggott.

EXPECTED

There remains the possibility that Laycoe may have accepted a job outside the WHL but he came to Victoria originally only because Portland was not ready to enter the WHL for the 1959-60 season because of lack of a suitable arena. This made it possible for Victoria to obtain the loan of the players—for one season—that the Portland group had acquired with the purchase of the New Westminster franchise.

Laycoe came along with the players he had handled in New Westminster and it was taken for granted that he would move on to Portland as soon as that franchise became operative.

Just back from Trail, where he was probably starting in the new job by taking a look at the hockey talent on display in the Allan Cup final, Laycoe expressed his regrets at leaving Victoria.

"I'm really sorry I have to leave," he said. "Both Mrs. Laycoe and I have enjoyed living in Victoria and both of us would have been more than happy if circumstances were such that we could continue to stay here."

A GOOD WORD

He didn't, however, leave any implication that his move was dictated by any belief that there is no future for the Victoria franchise.

"I don't know what is going to happen," he stated, "and I don't think anyone else does at the moment. But Victoria is a valuable franchise which is the Western Hockey League needs. I think you have fine fans—and enough of them—and while we didn't have many large crowds this season I can not say I was disappointed. I feel certain that Victoria will support a competitive Western Hockey League team."

Laycoe was unable to furnish any final figures for the past season, in which the Cougars finished in a third-place tie and then reached the playoff final, but it is expected that it will turn out to be a break-even season for Piggott financially.

At the moment, it appears as if Los Angeles will be included for next season but it is by no means any sure thing.

There are a surprising number of WHL officials who do not believe that Los Angeles will necessarily be an asset to the WHL, feeling that the city will support only major league sport and fearing the big increase in travelling expenses.

Another consideration is that the National Basketball Association has shifted Minneapolis Lakers to Los Angeles, where they will play in the same arena to be used for hockey. That just means another big league sport to go along with two professional football leagues and the best in college football and basketball in the competition for recognition.

be available for hockey until some weeks after the normal WHL opening. If it's also true that Portland's new arena won't be ready for hockey until November or December, it would force schedule problems which would frighten anyone but the fellows who want to operate in Los Angeles. They could have trouble convincing enough other clubs to get the necessary majority.

Ex-Trail Goalie Game Star As Maroons Win Allan Cup

TRAIL—Brilliant goaltending by Trail-born Cesare Manigo enabled Chatham Maroons to edge Trail Smoke Eaters, 5-4, Monday night and become the fourth straight eastern Canada team to win the Allan Cup.

Chatham won the best-of-seven series, 4-0, with one game tied. The Maroons now stand as a logical choice to represent Canada at either the world hockey championships in Sweden next fall or to tour Russia.

Trail jumped to an early 2-0 lead last night before 3,500 fans. But, the larger and more experienced Maroons moved in front later in the first period and forced Trail to score a pair of late goals to earn a 4-4 tie after two periods.

Chatham's winning goal was scored by Jim Connelly, a member of Canada's 1960 Olympic team, at 32 seconds of the final period.

Chatham—Goal: Manigo. Defence: Douglas, Snow, McGregor, Leyte; Forwards: Power, Connelly, Sharpe, Bathgate, Maho, Forhan, Allum, Cleary, Pletsch, Stoddard.

No Guide Needed —Or Boat, Either

AUCKLAND (CP)—H. J. Lee, who lives in the Bay of Islands, in the far north of New Zealand, has devised the ultimate in luxury fishing.

The finest fishing in the district is some distance out to sea from his house, which is at the top of a 100-foot cliff and some distance inland. But Lee fishes from his sitting room.

His look and line are suspended from a post driven into the seabed at the favorite feeding ground for local fish. When one gets on the hook it is reeled ashore along a wire which then runs through forest and scrub up to the cliff to Lee's house.

Lee sits with his rod in his favorite armchair listening to the radio. From time to time he reels a fish in through the window, rebats the line, and continues fishing. The system has worked without a hitch for 18 months.

Alberni Included in Plans For Western Canada League

VANCOUVER (CP)—Proposals for a new western Canada basketball league with teams from Lethbridge, Alta., Alberni, B.C., and Vancouver were discussed by representatives of the basketball interests from three cities here Sunday.

Palmer Ties With Collins

HOUSTON—Arnold Palmer and Bill Collins will play off today over 18 holes to decide the winner of the $35,000 Houston classic golf tournament.

Both golfers missed plenty of chances to win in Monday's fourth round as Palmer managed a one-over-par 73 and Collins needed 75 strokes.

Collins had taken a two-stroke lead on Sunday with a 68 while Palmer shot a 70 for 54-hole totals of 205 and 207, respectively.

Winner of $44,257.57 previously this season, Palmer birdied the 15th and 17th holes and Collins got a bogey on 17 to start the last hole all square.

Palmer missed a 15-footer as both settled for pars. Jack Fleck finished third, a final-round 72 leaving him at 281, only one stroke behind the leaders.

O.C. Cricket

LONDON (Reuters)—Close-of-play cricket scores Monday: At Bristol: Derbyshire 230 for eight declared and 8 for three; Northamptonshire 215.
At Cambridge: Cambridge University 332 and 129 for five; Nottinghamshire 262.
At Leeds: Yorkshire 143 and 146; MCC 168 and four for no wicket.
At Oxford: Gloucestershire 139; Oxford University 136 for six.
At Farnham: Glamorgan 297 and 126 for six declared; Warwickshire 148 and 18 for no wicket.
At Nottingham: Warwickshire 254 and 9 for no wicket; Sussex 89 (G. Cooper 141).

Norm Glog, chairman of the Vancouver Basketball Commission, said it is hoped to establish a five or six-team league for the 1960-61 season. Alberni Athletics, Lethbridge Brothers and three or possibly four Vancouver teams would be included, he said.

They would play a 20-game schedule in a five-team league or a 25-game schedule in a six-team league.

The teams would play an equal number of games at home and away. An all-star team would be chosen at the end of the season.

Glog said managers Harold Brown and Stan Broder and coach Bob Hamilton, who represented Lethbridge at the talks, plan to organize a complete minor league set-up in Lethbridge and district if the new senior league is formed.

Alberni was represented at the talks by manager Fred Bishop and coach Elmer Speidel, while Glog, senior "A" commissioner Basil Sands and Joe Polley, past president of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, represented Vancouver.

Glog said an organizational meeting will be held within a couple of months, after representatives have had time to present plans for the new league to their parent associations.

Hefty Spring Looks Hard to Beat

By ALEC MERRIMAN
The Daily Colonist King
Fisherman Contest started with a bang Sunday when Bill Edlund boated a 38-pound spring salmon off Discovery Island.
Leaving no doubt that hefty springs are already in Victoria waters, it took an early lead in the spring division. It may be hard to topple. The biggest salmon in all of May last year was only 36 pounds and was caught in the same
Lake Sunday on a worm.
Douglas Fieldhouse caught a 3:11-pounder at Beaver Lake Sunday, also on a worm. But there is still plenty of room for bigger fish in the bass division. Last May young John Todd caught a 6:3-pounder in Prospect Lake and retained the lead through the contest.

TROUT LEAD

Gary Freer took the trout lead with a 2:12-pounder from Elk Lake on lake troll and worm.

Elk-Beaver Lake proved a hot spot for bass and trout over the weekend and Langford Lake produced some bass.

Salmon fishing was not good in the Victoria-Brentwood area, Sunday, except for blues and jack springs too small to enter in the Colonist contest, but the few that were weighed in were mainly in the heavyweight division.

AT GOLDSTREAM

Doug Bray landed into a 16-pounder at the Goldstream end of the inlet.

Two button fish were weighed in at Gilbert's on Sunday. Bob Jones, a director of the Victoria Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association, caught a 21:10-pounder off Willis Point using Strip-Teaser, 200 feet of line and a planer.

OFF WHARF

Mrs. Len Knight caught a 20:1-pounder right off Gilbert's Wharf and Tod Inlet using a Minnow-Teaser, 100 feet of line and a planer.
Tommy Moss caught a 16½-pounder.

Edlund, 23, a drapery clerk in Eaton's department store, is a Colonist subscriber and therefore is in position to win the Youngstown food waste disposer which will be donated by W. R. Menzies & Co. for the biggest spring salmon weighed in by a subscriber.

NEAR KELP

He was fishing with Donna Easton; near the kelp on the inside of Discovery Island, when he landed into the big one just at the change of tide about 1:30 p.m.

He was using large Strip-Teaser, 50 feet of line and eight ounces of weight and it took about 20 minutes to land it.

LOST GAFF

The couple got so excited they dropped the gaff overboard and Edlund had to grip the fish by the gills and haul it aboard his 14-foot outboard cruiser.

It was his first big fish of the season, but he is no stranger to big fish. Last year he caught a 44-pounder in Oak Bay waters.

Has Sense of Balance But Just 'a Little Giddy'

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (Reuters) — Mrs.
Elizabeth Verwoerd, wife of wounded Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd, has denied that her husband has temporarily lost his sense of balance, as stated Saturday by Paul Sauer, senior minister in the cabinet.

The prime minister's wife telephoned the newspaper Dagbreek, to say Verwoerd's sense of balance "is by no means impaired," but she admitted he was "a little giddy."

Children Abandoned

Court Will Hear Modern Version Of 'Hansel, Gretel'

VALDOSTA, Ga. (UPI) — A modern-day version of "Hansel and Gretel" will unfold in court here this week as a hobo stepfather and his unemotional wife tell of abandoning two small boys in a briar patch.

Howard Thomas, 37, of Roxboro, Ala., and Elizabeth May Thomas, 26, of Greentown, Md., face a possible 12 months in prison for child abandonment.

FEND FOR SELVES

The boys, Tommy, 4, and Johnny, 2, were found near Hahira, Ga., last Tuesday, three days after they had been left to fend for themselves in a secluded woody area. Thomas and his wife were arrested Saturday near Albany, Ga., about 82 miles from Hahira, as they were hitchhiking along U.S. 82.

Police brought the couple here and took them into a courtroom where the two youngsters were waiting.
Tommy, the oldest, showed no emotion. But little Johnny burst into tears and tried to run away, as though he were afraid of his parents.

SCOOPED THEM UP

A policeman scooped both boys up in his arms, walked with them over to the couple and asked: "Who is that?"
"Mommy, Daddy," both children chorused.

Police had been trying since the children were found to establish their identity. The boys were too young to give them much of a lead.

Sheriff Jewell Futch said that, at first, neither the stepfather nor the mother gave any sign of recognizing the boys. But after the youngsters identified them, the mother burst into tears.

Thomas, clad in dungarees and a sweat shirt, tried to explain: "We just didn't have no money to support them. I haven't had a regular job in years. I've just been bumming around."

Mrs. Thomas, a slight, 95-pound woman dressed in long plaid cotton, said the boys were hers by a previous marriage and that she had married
Thomas just two years ago.
She showed no further emotion when reunited with her children and insisted that it was her idea to leave them in the briar patch.

The couple said they had hitchhiked to Panama City, Fla., after deserting the boys but were on their way back to Hahira to get them when they were arrested. "After all," Thomas said, "I'm only human."

Mother Sees Child Struck

VANCOUVER (CP)—The mother of a three-year-old boy saw him struck by a car in front of his home Sunday — nationally — proclaimed "Child Safety Day."

In critical condition in Vancouver General Hospital is Bruce Dureau, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Dureau. He has a fractured skull and other head injuries.

ARCTIC LAKES

Baffin Island, largest of Canada's Arctic islands, has many freshwater lakes in the interior.

"Then I said,
'Change the differential...'
that means"

As well as her many other duties, Mother is very often given the job of taking the family car in for regular check-ups.
But it doesn't really matter that she's not quite sure what has to be done, because she's entrusting the job to her neighbourhood Mr. B-A.

Victoria Plane Lands on Flat

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Trans-Canada Air Lines plane landed on a flat tire at Vancouver International Airport Sunday. Pilot Al Marshall stopped the DC3 on the runway when he noticed the right front tire was flat. The 28 passengers were taken off unhurt. The tire was changed and the plane resumed service.

Air 'Eyes' Disbanded

RCAF Doesn't Need Observers in South

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCAF's ground observer corps—the human eyes and ears that supplement the electronic warning system of Canada's air defence—will be disbanded below the 55th parallel June 1, Defence Minister Peakes announced Monday.

The observation posts north of the 55th parallel, which runs through the foot of Hudson Bay, will continue to supplement the DEW and mid-Canada warning lines and to aid the RCAF Search and Rescue service.

U.S. ACTION

In disbanding the big majority of the corps, the government followed a 1959 U.S. move.

South of the 55th parallel, the corps comprises some 35,000 civilian volunteers, 83 RCAF officers and 73 aircrew. Most of the RCAF personnel will return to aircrew duties.

A handful of RCAF personnel will continue to man observation posts above the 55th parallel.

Officials said the corps has been so efficient RCAF jets have been able to intercept and identify unknown planes on information supplied solely by the corps and without relying on radar.

The corps was established in northern Canada in 1950.

and in southern Canada a year later. Posts were spotted about eight miles apart, though in thinly-populated regions in the north there are much greater distances between them.

WITHOUT PAY

In the north, the RCAF relies for observers on missionaries, Eskimos, trappers, RCMP constables, weathermen and Hudson's Bay Company factors, without pay.

The federal penitentiary at Dorchester, N.B., has been rated as one of the best observer posts in Canada. Guards on the walls took on "bird-watching"—a term used by the corps—as an added duty.

portant contribution of the corps has been superseded in the south by improvements in radar and other means of providing information on aircraft flying over Canada.

It is understood consideration has been given to asking corps volunteers to participate in the militia's civil defence role—the monitoring and assessment of nuclear explosions and fallout and rescue work.

Farmers Beating Quotas?

OTTAWA (CP) — Growing number of Prairie grain producers is trying to beat the quota system of deliveries, chief commissioner W. C. McNamara of the Canadian Wheat Board said Monday.

"It seems to be the sporting thing in certain localities to try to get above the quota," he told the Commons committee on agriculture, warning this trend may lead to revision of the board's authority.

Like prohibition, the quota system can work best only if it has public support, he added.

Warner Jorgenson (PC, Provencher), referring to "boot-legging" of grain, claimed merchants such as implement dealers or others in farm communities accept grain from farmers as middlemen in a barter deal for a television set or some other commodity. The merchant could legally sell the grain to a feed mill or to another farmer.

Mental Health Centre Opened

The White Cross Centre at Oak Bay Avenue and Fort, to be used as a social centre for persons with emotional and mental problems, was officially opened yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Percy Scurrah.

The new centre will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily and be staffed by Gerald Sommers, executive director, and Mrs. May Cooper, secretary. They will be assisted by volunteers.

It is designed for use as a social centre for former mental patients and others seeking counselling or information about how to obtain help for emotional problems, said the group's president, Harvey Mickelson. A recreational program will also be established.

How will your Estate be distributed?

Will the best interests of your family be kept in mind? Today too many men with modest estates would have to answer this question with a perplexed shrug of the shoulders. But it is a part of your personal affairs that you should be sure of. Did you know, for example, that if you fail to provide for the settlement of your estate before you die the law steps in after and does it for you? The results could bring hardship where it is least deserved.

There are two people in your community who can help you solve the problem. First is your lawyer who will be glad to help you draw up a proper will.

Second is your Manufacturers Life representative. He will welcome the opportunity to review your life insurance estate and bring up-to-date such matters as who will receive the money and how it will be paid.

Chessman Died 1,000 Deaths, Victorians Feel

Victoria residents viewed the execution of Caryl Chessman with mixed feelings last night but were almost unanimous on one point—innocent or guilty, he should not have been kept waiting so long.

Some thought him guilty, others considered him innocent. But the general feeling of a telephone survey was summed up by J. F. Dykes, 2121 Fair Street.

"I believe he was guilty, but I disagree with the way they went about it. He should have been made to pay for his crimes, but they were all wrong in waiting 12 years before doing anything about it." There were those who were glad Chessman was executed, regardless of the wait. "He got what was coming to him, that's all," said C. W. Boulter, 2548 Empire.

"He should have been dead years ago. I have no sympathy for him at all," said Arthur Williams, 311 Gorge Road West. "He never should have been allowed to live as long as he did."

However, others asked gave their answers with a note of reservation about Chessman's 12-year wait in a death cell.

"It should have been done 12 years ago," said G. L. Thomas, 1400 Gladstone. "If he wasn't innocent now, he wasn't innocent then. But this waiting around was no good, especially for that poor man suffering through all that waiting."

"After 12 years I don't think he should have been executed," said Mrs. Norman K. Jones, 1336 Burleigh Crescent. "He was up for execution so many times he probably died 1,000 times. If the U.S. couldn't make up its mind in 12 years, it's not much of a country."

Her sentiments were echoed by S. E. Webb, 115 Croft. "It's a disgrace to civilization. If they can't find out in 12 years whether a man is innocent or guilty they should quit. It's disgusting."

"I think that when the man had been subjected to the torture of waiting and waiting he paid a sufficient penalty," was the opinion of Mrs. H. N. Kerr, 700 Daisy. "At least they could have changed his sentence to life imprisonment."

Ernest G. Brown, 1010 Foul Bay Road, also thought life imprisonment would have been "a fairer decision," and Frank W. Smith, 1358 Craigflower added that "he claimed he was innocent, and I don't think the courts really proved him guilty."

"Justice was done," said Mrs. W. H. Sutcliffe, 2420 Bowker. But after 12 years of waiting, Caryl Chessman died yesterday, and Mrs. A. J. Barton, 90 Bay Street, expressed an opinion shared by many. "I don't know whether he was innocent or guilty," she said. "I'm just glad it's over at last."

Council Works Day and Night To Hack Record City Budget

To VMD

Fire Hall Vital

Fire-fighting crews at Victoria Machinery Depot are vital to the safety of the plant, but the Victoria fire department is necessary in the event of a large fire, a VMD spokesman said last night. (See Page 1.)

He was commenting on discussion yesterday in city council on the possibility of closing down the James Bay firehall and dismissing the 14 firemen stationed there, to save some $100,000.

Suggestion came during a special meeting of council called to consider the city's record budget of almost $10,000,000.

"Naturally, we don't like it," the VMD spokesman said. "Bapco (Paint Co.) and ourselves practically paid for it during the war but the city has run it since."

"We would like to see a firehall at our front door. We have our own fighting crews but they're only emergency crews and would not fight a real fire. Our own people are vital to catch a fire before it gets really started."

W. C. Gelling, chairman of the Greater Victoria school board, said he felt the matter was an internal city council problem.

"I feel sure the city will not leave the schools unprotected," he said. James Bay, South Park and Beacon Hill elementary schools are in the firehall's area.

Further Sessions Scheduled Today

Confronted with a record-shattering provisional budget which would increase taxes 7½ mills or 15 per cent if passed, city council yesterday worked morning, afternoon and evening to cut out the equivalent of nearly three-quarters of a mill.

This morning it will return to the task. So far it has concentrated on "normal" expenditures, but ahead of it lie "special" expenditures—improvements—from which it could cut, if it thinks wise, another 3½ or four mills, according to City Comptroller Dennis Young.

It also will consider closing the James Bay firehall for a saving of one mill. (See story on front page.)

Even so, Mayor Percy Scourrah said last night during a session which grew heated enough to evoke a threat of resignation from Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson. "If we can come up with a budget three or four mills up, people are going to murder you. It's plain murder to some people."

Ald. Wilson's implied threat came after Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow accused her welfare committee of turning old men out of Mountain View Home to another home and suggested two of them might not have died so soon if it hadn't been done.

"I can't take that," said Ald. Wilson, and then, leaving her seat and picking up her coat, she added, "Can I resign? I won't be called a liar by anyone!"

But Mayor Scourrah asked her to take her seat again, and she did.

Council decided to spend only as much as necessary for repairs to keep the home going "for two years or so" pending the opening of the Salvation Army's new home, thereby cutting $9,406 from estimates.

It started work on parks maintenance estimates before it quit for the night, and led chiefly by public works chairman Ald. Edgelow, systematically cut almost every item to some degree.

"Sure, we ought to do it," Mayor Scourrah told parks chairman Ald. M. H. Mooney at one point, "but what are we going to use for money?"

Friends Honor E & N Veteran

Scores of old friends and fellow employees of Albert E. McNeill of the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway Co. attended his retirement dinner Saturday in the Empress Hotel.

Mr. McNeill, who retired as chief clerk to the superintendent after 48 years with the company, was presented with a pair of binoculars by fellow employees.

'Work Bee' Cleanup At Thetis Saturday

Second annual "work bee" cleanup will be held Saturday by members of the Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association starting at 10 a.m. at the park concession.

Volunteers wishing to spend only the afternoon at the park will meet at 1 p.m. at the Monterey Restaurant, an official said last night.

"This is not an essential service," said Ald. Edgelow.

In the evening session, council made net cuts of nearly $14,000.

In the morning and afternoon, it had cut $55,800 from estimates, mostly in comparatively small but numerous amounts from public works: such cuts as $7,300 from $67,300 for street signs and signals, and $500 from $2,500 for protective fences. "Children will climb over and fall in anyway," said the mayor.

Apart from the proposed closing of the James Bay firehall, the items that caused the most debate were the public library budget and the proposed addition of a third electrical inspector to the staff.

The library board submitted a budget $20,000 higher than last year's, mainly because of wage increases, but Mayor Scourrah said:

"Well now look, I recognize we need library service and to keep it up to date, but I want you to keep in mind we've got to cut our coat to fit the cloth, and we haven't the money. . . . We've got to cut any place and every place."

Council cut $5,000 from the budget, for a net saving to Victoria city of $2,300.

Proposal to increase the electrical inspection staff resulted, Ald. Austin Curtis told council, because a Bay Street apartment fire had occurred as a result of the department being unable to keep up with its work.

"The fire department is finding and reporting faults and we had a fire because the electrical inspection department couldn't keep up with the work," he said.

City Engineer James Garnett confirmed that the department couldn't handle the work. It was supposed to do, but Ald. Edgelow successfully maintained that the $2,814 estimate should be eliminated. "We did have one fire, it's true, but still we might have had it if we didn't have the extra inspector."

In its deliberations, council rejected a suggestion by Ald. Mooney that it set its spending limit first, then call for departmental estimates to fit.

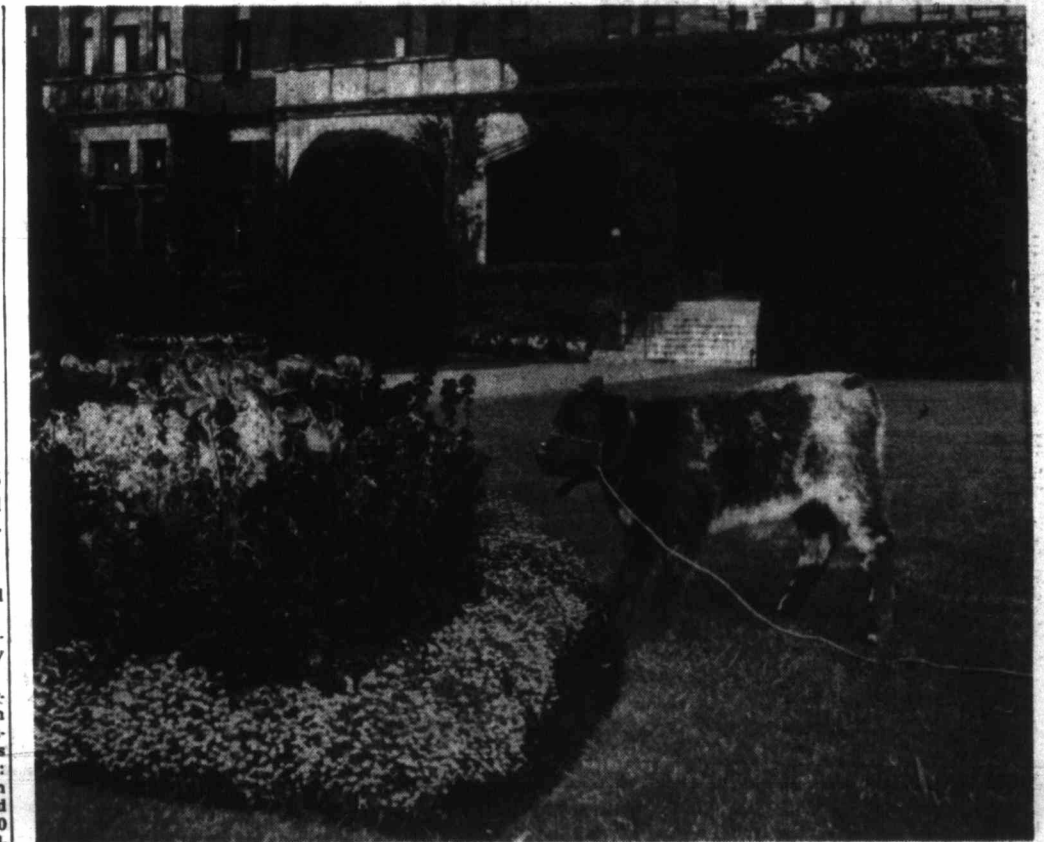

For next year, Ald. Arthur Dowell suggested committees look into the possibility of saving money by letting much of the city's work out to contract.

Two Suspects in Custody After Hudson's Bay Theft

Two suspects are in custody of city police following a break-in at the Hudson's Bay Company store overnight Sunday in which articles valued at about $900 were stolen.

All the stolen articles have been recovered, police said. Entry to the store was gained through the only door not equipped with a burglar alarm: a fire exit leading from the basement to the lower level of the parkade. This door had a small wire-mesh glass window, which was broken.

Yesterday, store officials said, repairs were effected and today the alarm system covers every possible entrance to the store.

DeWolf Pays Last Visit

West Coast Sailors to Man Sub Coming Here on Loan

The U.S. submarine Burrfish, coming to Esquimalt on a five-year loan, will be manned almost entirely by sailors now serving on this coast, Vice-Admiral H. G. DeWolf said yesterday.

The chief of naval staff, paying his last visit to Pacific Command before his retirement in August, said having the submarine on the West Coast for training of navy ships and RCAF maritime aircraft "will be of tremendous advantage."

The Royal Canadian Navy, Admiral DeWolf said, has been "very sadly lacking in training submarine," and the three Royal Navy submarines on the Atlantic Coast, partly manned by Canadians, "only partly meet our naval and air force requirements. Both services are growing, the air force needs a lot of time on target submarines and we have more ships than ever on anti-submarine work."

First fitting out of the submarine will be done in U.S. yards, he said, but "I think we can do almost all the normal maintenance of a conventional submarine here."

Admiral DeWolf paid tribute to the man who will succeed him as chief of naval staff, Rear-Admiral H. S. Rayner, the navy.

flag officer Pacific Coast—"I'll turn over the reins of office to Admiral Rayner with the greatest confidence."

He hopes, he said, that Admiral Rayner's successor at Esquimalt will be named in the next few days.

Looking back over his 42-year share of the Royal Canadian Navy's 50-year history, Admiral DeWolf picked 1922 as the lowest point for the navy in that time: the year when a decision was made to eliminate the navy, although the government changed its mind.

The highest point: "During the war, when we not only built up at a very extraordinary rate but after doing that for three years made the stupendous decision to double the navy."

Colquitz Mental Hospital

'Hold Your Horses' Martin Tells Critics

Critics of the treatment program at Colquitz Mental Hospital should "hold their horses," Health Services Minister Eric Martin said yesterday.

Asked to comment on charges by volunteer mental health workers that Colquitz is more like a jail than a treatment centre, the minister said he would have nothing to say until the government hears the recommendations of a U.S. psychiatric expert who conducted a study of B.C.'s facilities and future needs last year.

The report of Dr. Matthew Ross, an official of the American Psychiatric Association, is expected later this year.

Attention was focused on the Colquitz mental home on April 24 after a Saanich police constable was slain while trying to recapture an inmate who had armed himself with rifles stolen from the asylum's adjacent farm.

Local mental health group spokesmen said the institution had no apparent treatment program and a Vancouver official said it was more like a penal institution than a hospital.

"These people are 'way-off base—they should hold their horses,'" Mr. Martin said.

He said Dr. Ross was retained by the province in the realization that concepts in mental health care are changing.

"I'm a layman, he is the expert . . . we are paying him money."

Preliminary indications are that the province will be advised to decentralize its mental institution facilities, the minister stated.

Council Told

7½-Mill Tax Jump 'Unprecedented'

City Comptroller Dennis Young informed city council that the 7½-mill tax increase called for in the provisional budget he presented yesterday was "unprecedented."

In past years, he said, council had usually chosen to ease the burden on the taxpayers by eliminating special capital programs and sometimes reducing basic maintenance.

"Such action, regardless of its merits, is now being reflected in increased operating requirements and a large list of deferred special projects," he said. To attempt to hold the line, he added, "would not be in my opinion be in the city's best interest. Some reasonable compromise between this approach and the budget as presented should be sought."

Off Trial Island

Sudbury II Saves U.S. Yachtsmen

Three Port Angeles yachtsmen aboard the disabled 35-foot cruiser Eldorado were taken in tow early yesterday by the Island Tug and Barge deepsea tug Sudbury II off Trial Island.

The American cruiser skippered by Victor Rambo was half-way through a predicted log race Sunday when they fixed up at Cadboro Bay because of engine failure. Early yesterday they decided to try and catch the tide to Trial Island, still without power. At Trial Island they radioed for assistance.

The Sudbury in-bound to Victoria from Japan received the distress message and went to help. The tow was later transferred to a smaller tug.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

DEAR ANN: How far does "Love thy neighbor" go anyway?

The woman next door is a scatterbrain who dumps her problems on anyone handy. Every year she has a new baby. Without warning I'm stuck with her kids whenever she goes to the hospital.

This morning at 1 a.m. she and her husband appeared at our front door with their four little ones. We've known since December she was pregnant. They acted as if they'd just found it out. We couldn't turn them down at that hour so now I have her four and my three!

Last year I hinted strongly that she couldn't count on me again because I have neither the space nor the strength. She had nine months to make other arrangements. What shall I do next year? I've had it—EASY MARK.

Dear Easy: Tell her well in advance and stop hinting. Remind her from time to time and if necessary offer to help line up a housekeeper who can take over on a moment's notice.

Why Is It Wrong?

Dear Ann: I'm a girl of 18 who is very much in love with a boy 19. We plan to be married in a few years.

Our biggest problem centres around sex. It's not his fault, or mine either. We both try very hard to control ourselves. So far we haven't lost our heads completely, but we're getting close to the line.

Maybe I'm stupid, but why is it wrong when two people are in love? Everyone says it's wrong, but no one says why. We respect each other and plan to be married.

If I had a daughter and she asked me why it's wrong to give yourself before marriage I couldn't tell her. Can you tell me?—PAT.

Dear Pat: It's wrong because it violates the moral code. The primary purpose of complete physical love is to bring children into the world.

Premarital experimentation can be dangerous because couples sometimes change their minds and don't marry after all.

This can be a devastating experience. My desk is always piled high with letters from heartbroken girls who were left flat because they had no more to give. They never thought it could happen to them—but it did. Frequently these girls are pregnant, and needless to say, these letters are the most tragic of all.

If it's really love it is also respect and consideration. And it can wait for full expression. Of course this takes control, but this is part of being civilized, mature and self-disciplined.

Suddenly I'm Dumb

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a devoted Landers fan. Please tell him off in your inimitable style so I can shove the paper in his face and say, "SEE!"

We've been married five years and never had any trouble until last week. He is trying to teach me to drive. Suddenly I'm the dumbest woman who ever lived. He claims I'll never learn to handle a car because I have "slow reflexes and a limited mentality."

Deep down I feel he is at fault because he's a poor teacher and has no patience. Please tell him.—STRIPPED GEARS.

Dear Gears: I'll tell you both. A smart wife:

(1) Never interrupts her husband when he's telling a joke.

(2) Never plays bridge with her husband.

(3) Never lets her husband teach her to drive.

Confidential to NO HOPE LEFT. You wouldn't take medicine prescribed for someone else, would you? Well,

Tips for Parents

Safety First

By EDITH HENRY

Children's lives are precious—so precious that a careful mother's thought dwells constantly on their protection.

Lady Wortley Montague, writing home from the Far East in 1715, says, "To Eastern women, children are so desirable that they pray 'God be so merciful as to send me two.'"

Parents were aware that "plague will certainly kill half of them."

Today in Canada, we have the same feeling about the life of a child. Our "plague," however, is not related to physical illness so much as accidents which may kill or maim.

To Wed in U.S.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rosenthal, 3020 Lansdowne Road, announce the engagement of their daughter Valerie Doreen, to Mr. David Edward Belch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward O. Belch of Portland, Oregon. Miss Rosenthal, a former Victorian, attended Victoria College. The couple plan a June wedding and will make their home in San Francisco. Mrs. Robert Chereff, Victoria, will be travelling south to be the bride's matron-of-honor.

What's Cooking

What's in Name?

By LOUISE MOORE

When serving food specialties from other countries, why not give them their rightful names? For instance, doesn't Wiener Schnitzel sound more intriguing than a breaded veal cutlet?

Of course in old Vienna you would wear your best bib and tucker and dine in splendor with the Blue Danube playing softly in the background.

DINNER FOR EIGHT

Wiener Schnitzel—Choose 8 veal cutlets cut at least 1/4 inch thick and have the butcher pound the meat with a cleaver to make it very thin.

Now mix 1 beaten egg with 1 tabsp cold water in a shallow bowl. And in another shallow dish mix 1 cup dry bread crumbs, 1 tsp finely chopped parsley, 1/4 cup flour, 1 tsp salt and 1/2 tsp black pepper freshly ground.

First dip each cutlet into the egg and water mixture, then into the bread-crumbs mixture. Place breaded cutlets in a single layer on waxed paper and allow to stand 30 minutes.

Melt 1/2 cup or more of butter in large heavy frying pan and when piping hot saute the cutlets a few at a time until all are a golden brown on both sides. A little more butter may be needed to brown the whole batch. When all are browned return them to the pan and add 1/4 cup beer or ale.

Cover tightly and cook slowly until tender—about 30 minutes. Heat remaining butter in pan with 6 mashed anchovy fillets and the juice of 1 lemon. Pour over cutlets.

Lovely Bride

Signing the register at First United Church after their recent marriage are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Henry Leighton. The bride, formerly Janet Mary Nicolson, is the only daughter of Mr. J. W. Nicolson, 2823 Graham Street. Groom is son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Leighton, 1700 Lansdowne Road. (Photo by S. H. Draper.)

Rosses To Meet Queen

The Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Ross, who are now in London, will attend an evening reception, Tuesday, May 3, at the Guildhall, given by the High Commissioners of Commonwealth countries for their prime ministers and ministers.

His Honor and Mrs. Ross, accompanied by Mrs. Ross's son, Mr. John Turner, and her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Norris, will attend an evening reception to be given by HM The Queen and HRH The Duke of Edinburgh, Wednesday, May 4, at Buckingham Palace.

The Rosses will have lunch, Thursday, May 5, with the Duchess of Kent and Princess Alexandra at Kensington Palace.

Friday, May 6, the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Ross will attend the wedding of HRH Princess Margaret and Mr. Antony Armstrong-Jones at Westminster Abbey.

They will attend a garden party at Buckingham Palace, Monday, May 9.

Flower Show

Prizes Awarded

Children's entries rivalled those of the adults in this year's annual Cadboro Bay flower show held in St. George's parish hall, Saturday.

Forget-me-nots were a favored flower in the dainty miniature arrangements.

In the popular driftwood class, Mrs. B. Lyons came first with an entry combining driftwood and three camellias.

Another entry which caused comment was Mrs. E. W. Botting's arrangement expressing motion. This was a small boat made of plaited rope with a sail of white blossoms.

The show was opened by Mrs. H. Martin, wife of the former bishop of Saskatchewan, and was attended by hundreds of visitors, many of whom came from the mainland.

Judges were Mrs. Marion Brown, Mrs. C. Ballantyne, Mrs. C. L. Wilson and Mr. W. S. Duff.

Prize winners are as follows: pinks, T. Wilson, Mrs. W. Harding; violas, Mrs. T. Vaulkhard, Mrs. T. H. Burns; polyanthus, Mrs. Vaulkhard, Mrs. T. H. Burns; anemones, Mrs. R. Gregg, Mrs. M. Bradley, wallflowers, Mrs. Burns, Mrs. E. Elstrom, Mrs. W. Margason, Mrs. R. Gregg, Mrs. J. Rowe, Mrs. Margason, lilies, one variety, Mrs. Bradley, T. Wilson, Mrs. Dunstons, Mrs. Margason, daffodils, one variety, Mrs. A. McCabe, Mrs. R. H. Howland, Mrs. W. H. Ducker, daffodils, one variety, Mrs. McCabe, Mrs. Ducker, Mrs. Howland, flowering type of shrub, Mrs. Darius-Holder, Mrs. C. Mark, Mrs. W. W. McVie, Mrs. C. Holmes, Mrs. Lee Kelly, Mrs. Ida Boyle, Mrs. N. Barr, African violet, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. W. W. McVie, Mrs. D. D. Jones, potted plants, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. E. C. Holmes.

arrangement living room: Mrs. A. McPherson, composition against fabric; Mrs. T. Vaulkhard, composition, driftwood, Mrs. B. Lyons; arrangement expressing motion, Mrs. E. W. In the Junior 9 to 14 age group, Dede Leland took first prize, while Gerald Vaulkhard was winner in the Junior eight-year-old class.

LANGFORD

Members of St. Matthew's Church Guild, Langford, recently held a successful Spring tea in the hall. Those in charge of stalls were as follows: sewing, Mrs. O. S. Moore, Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. C. Stone; homecooking, Mrs. G. Laird and Mrs. A. Dugan. Teas were convoked by Mrs. A. Ashdown and Mrs. Sims. Tea tickets were sold by Miss L. M. A. Savory. Servers were Mrs. C. Connorton, Miss M. Powers and Mrs. C. Carlow. Contests were in charge of Mrs. L. Horner.

Rockland Park WCTU will meet on Tuesday, May 3, at 3 p.m. in the Metropolitan Church parlor.

Bomb Scare Clears City Cafes

A bomb scare early today led police to clear all customers and staff from both Paul's Restaurants on Douglas Street. It proved to be false.

About 12:45 a.m., an anonymous caller told the telephone operator: "There's a bomb in Paul's Restaurant, and it's set to go off at 1 a.m. Then he hung up."

Not knowing which restaurant might be meant, police cleared both, but searched in vain. Customers went back at 1:10 a.m.

Police-Fire 'Merger' Goes Back

Saanich council has returned a recommendation to its finance committee—comprising all members of council—that firemen should take over some duties from Saanich police.

Plan was proposed to the committee by the police commission after Chief Const. W. A. Pearson asked permission to hire four more men.

Faced with 11 per cent raises for police and firemen, and increases in school costs and the budget, finance committee recommended the plan to council, and ordered Chief Pearson and Fire Chief Joseph Law to report to council on feasibility.

At last night's council meeting, Mr. Chatterton mentioned he had received a report from Chief Law, and moved that the recommendation be referred back for further consideration.

The finance committee will meet tonight to consider the $4,000,000 provisional budget.

A second recommendation, that council approve purchase of a new, four-place ambulance at a cost of some $12,600, was also referred back to finance committee.

Saanich Council Rule

'Outside' Boatmen Halted at Elk Lake

Only persons owning property fronting Elk Lake, and their friends, will be able to launch boats on Elk Lake this summer.

Saanich council last night gave first three readings to a bylaw prohibiting the launching of boats from any public land other than that designated by council.

And council designated an area which is swamp land and impossible to use without dredging and other work.

The area designated, closest part of the lake to Brookleigh Road, just past Hamsterley Park, has been chosen as the site for a $10,000 boat launching ramp to be built by council.

But the work will not be done until the municipality's winter works program for next year is adopted. Saanich engineer Neville Life said the cost to council will be about $1,500 if the government grants are made available, he said.

Fourth and final reading of the bylaw, to make it law, will be given at the next meeting of council, probably May 16.

Mr. Life told council the situation was understood by representatives of Victoria Inboard and Outboard Association and Victoria Outboard Club.

You're Out of Date 4-H Delegates Told

The 4-H Club movement in Canada today is outmoded and must undergo drastic changes if it wants to regain popularity among the nation's future farmers, deputy agriculture minister William MacGillivray suggested yesterday.

In a speech to delegates of the Canadian Council on 4-H Clubs, holding their 29th annual conference at the Empress Hotel, Mr. MacGillivray stressed that his opinions were personal and had nothing to do with the agricultural department's present or future policies.

Drastic changes have taken place in agricultural technology and in the rural way of life since the first clubs were formed between 1912 and 1915, he said.

"4-H concepts and policies designed for an earlier generation, may in my opinion, require adjustments and very likely drastic revision to meet today's challenges," he said.

He was disturbed that the average age of 4-H Club members is 13 and that less than 15 per cent are over 15 years.

He suggested that some other governmental department should direct programs for children between 10 and 15 and that the department of agriculture should concentrate its efforts in the training of young men who will become farmers.

"I want it distinctly understood that I appreciate and acknowledge the fine contribution made by the 4-H Club movement as now organized," he said.

"Nevertheless, I feel sincerely that before too long provincial departments will find it necessary to place the emphasis on assisting young farmer and farm women groups—men and women up to 30 or 35 who require and will put to practical use programs patterned to the times and to their needs," said Mr. MacGillivray.

Agriculture Minister Newton P. Steacey, in a later speech to the same group, said "the B.C. department of agriculture is understandably proud of the role it has played over the years in fostering the 4-H Club movement. I can assure you that it is our intention to continue in this direction."

Mr. Steacey said that in the past decade 4-H groups in B.C. have achieved gains "equally as impressive as any I can point to in other phases of agriculture."

"We are indeed fortunate to have in B.C. people who are prepared to spend their time and energy in this most valuable of all pursuits—the training of our rural young people."

Devil-May-Care Attitude Result of Atom, Judge Says

VANCOUVER (CP)—Over-emphasis on the terrors of nuclear development may have created a devil-may-care attitude toward life, Mr. Justice T. G. Norris told members of the Canadian Highway Council in convention here.

He was guest speaker at the opening day luncheon of the three-day convention. He spoke of the rising toll of dead and injured on Canadian highways despite more rigid enforcement and stepped-up education programs.

During his address he made obvious reference to Hon. P. A. Gagliardi, highways minister for B.C., and a minister of the Gospel.

"In the case of a few of us," said Mr. Justice Norris, "could it be said that the cause of our carelessness in driving is that certainty of salvation in the next world which may have motivated a certain reverend gentleman of my acquaintance in his well-earned failure to observe the traffic laws."

Highway accidents have become such a commonplace as to be accepted as a normal hazard of living.

"To say that familiarity breeds contempt, is really a masterpiece of understatement," he said.

Fight With the Wife? Don't Drive

VANCOUVER (CP)—If you've just had a fight with your wife, says Dr. R. M. Peet of Victoria, leave your car at home.

He told delegates to the annual convention of the Canadian Highway Safety Council Monday that emotional disturbances affect driving habits and the two should not be mixed.

Dr. Peet took part in a panel discussion by physicians of the physical and mental fitness of drivers in relation to highway safety.

Wedding Victory For Archbishop

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP)—Two principals in one of the strangest dramas of British royalty—a beautiful, gay princess and a plain-spoken, richly-robed Archbishop—will meet again Friday at Abbey.

"Margaret Rose," he will say, "will thou have this man to be thy wedded husband, to live together after God's ordinance in the holy estate of matrimony?"

"I will," she will reply. And the archbishop may then be permitted a moment of self-congratulation.

Five years ago Most Rev. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury and Anglican Primate, was instrumental in breaking up Margaret's romance with Peter Townsend, divorced air hero she wanted to marry.

HAPPY ENDING

On Friday the archbishop will be officiating at her marriage to Antony Armstrong-Jones. Margaret's sorrow will have come to a happy ending, and the church's teaching of the sanctity of marriage will have been upheld.

The archbishop, one of the great brains of Britain, lives simply, smokes a pipe, has a genial good humor, likes a game of cricket and a glass of wine.

NOT POPULAR

In short, he is exactly the sort of man Britons normally approve of. Yet no one would call him popular.

After the Townsend affair he was booed in public. Newspapers said he was out of touch with the 20th century and called for him to resign.

NO DIFFERENCE

All this made no difference in his belief in the lifetime duration of Christian marriage, in the sanctity of the words "those who God hath joined together let no man put asunder."

But despite this insistence on the lifelong nature of the marriage vows, guests will include a number of divorced notables, among them Princess Georg of Denmark, Margaret's cousin, who divorced her first husband, and the bridegroom's divorced parents.

Show Business

By DICK WILLIAMS

Gene Barry recently moved into a new home in Bel Air, for which he did his own contracting and supervised most of the actual building. During the construction period he would frequently help out dressed in work clothes.

One day his press agent set up an interview with a sophisticated woman magazine writer from New York. Arrangements were made to pick her up at the Beverly Hills hotel and drive her to a restaurant for the interview.

On the day of the interview, Barry was busy hauling lumber and hammering nails and had forgotten the luncheon date. When his wife excitedly reminded him of it, there was no time to change clothes. Gene dropped his tools and roared away in a pickup truck.

A few minutes later he pulled up at the canopied entrance of the plush hotel to meet the astonished writer and his equally bewildered press agent. Off they whirled for lunch.

As she lit a cigaret, the magazine scribe said between tight lips, "If this is your idea of a joke, it's pretty corny." It took a good while to prove that she wasn't the victim of another Hollywood practical joke!

Speed, Deaths Not Connected

VANCOUVER (CP)—Increased speed limits do not force up the traffic-death toll, two officials of the Canadian Highway Safety Council said Monday.

Ira Needles of Kitchener, Ont., chairman of the council, and W. Arch Bryce, council executive director from Toronto, said there is no direct connection between speed and accidents.

Here for the council's convention, they said limits should go up only where highways are adequate for increased speeds.

Mr. Bryce said speed limits of 60 miles an hour should be used only on four-lane highways. On a two-lane highway, it did not allow the driver enough time to make a decision in an emergency.

Mr. Needles said increasing the speed limit often increased road safety because it cut down on impatient drivers who broke the speed limit to pass other cars.

Devoted Billy Held Answer

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—A tall, willowy bachelor named Billy Wallace played an off-stage but highly important role in the romance of Princess Margaret and Antony Armstrong-Jones.

The soul of discretion, he won't discuss the subject, or even have the subject discussed around him. But his close friends say:

At a small party in 1958 it was Billy who introduced the beautiful princess and the up-and-coming photographer.

And it was to Billy that an enthusiastic Armstrong-Jones said:

"She's simply stunning. Absolutely the most marvellous person I've ever met in my life."

BIG PROBLEM
And it was to Billy that Tony came with a problem—how to meet her again?

"I'll see what can be done"—or words to that effect, replied Wallace. So he arranged a party at which his two friends met for a second time.

CAREER TOP

Sandwiched between this feverish activity, Tony had received the royal commission of his career—photographing the princess for her 29th birthday last summer.

He took her picture and it was a winner.

After that, the idea of seeing the young photographer again must have pleased the princess, for she saw him privately.

Roses Can Be 'Canned'

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

At one time, May Day was considered the deadline for the planting of shrubs, roses and trees. The reason why late planting was deemed hazardous is because most subjects have leafed out fully by the end of April, and this foliage, exposed to sun and wind, transpires moisture more rapidly than the roots, crippled in transplanting, are able to take up water from the soil.

This concept made things extraordinarily difficult for the nurseryman. You can't plant things until the soil dries out sufficiently to be worked, and the period between the drying out of the soil and the leafing out of the plant is very short. So the nurseryman found himself obliged to do his whole year's business during a few short weeks in spring and a similar brief period in the fall.

The breeding, growing and selling of plants has become big business these days and, in an effort to extend the selling season, the nursery trades have developed some ingenious techniques. Plants, particularly roses, can be dug in the fall and held dormant under refrigeration for a period long beyond the normal planting time. Plastic and foil wraps, with a bit of damp peat moss, hold humidity at a high level within the package.

Another technique is the "canning" of roses, shrubs and trees. This isn't any airtight, vacuum-packed deal, but means simply that the plants are potted up in tin cans of suitable size. These are kept watered and fed and allowed to leaf out and make normal growth, just like the geranium on Aunt Martha's windowsill, until a customer comes along. The nurseryman slits the can, and the purchaser takes it home and slips the plant out of its container and into the ground with very little disturbance of the roots.

Other plants, notably small specimen conifers and evergreen azaleas and rhododendrons, have their roots packed in a ball of soil and wrapped with sacking. These are called "B & B" specimens—balled and burlapped—and such plants can be bought and planted successfully even while in full bloom.

By and large, it is safe to purchase any plants which have soil around their roots, even if leafed out. Bare-root roses and other shrubs may or may not be all right, depending on their storage. If they have been held under refrigeration, leaf and shoot growth shouldn't be very far advanced, and these should take hold reasonably well.

Another pretty safe buy is the plant growing in the nursery, dug up to your order and delivered with a minimum of delay. The big thing here is speed—the plant shouldn't be out of the ground for a moment longer than necessary—and it is a good idea to have the hole dug at home and everything ready to bung it in the ground as quickly as possible.

Don't drown the roots of newly-planted specimens, for the new root hairs will form more rapidly in soil which is just nicely moist than in a sloppy bog. You can nurse a tree or shrub through its difficult period of re-establishment much more effectively by wetting down the foliage frequently with plain water—as often as two or three times a day in dry and windy weather.

Scenery Steals the Show

Every year at this time, the stars get restless and as a consequence we get some lovely shots of Europe with Dave Garroway or someone like that in front of them. If you like that sort of thing—and I love it. Last Wednesday, two titles were explored in succession—London on the Perry Como show, Paris in a special on ABC—and they were both bewitching.

"Invitation to Paris" was as thoroughly satisfying French as any show could be and still be presented to a North America audience. Besides its French producer, its cast from its hosts, Maurice Chevalier and Fernandel, to its entertainers—were entirely French.

The scenery, as explained in the credits, was designed by the architects of Paris over 2,000 years. The producer and director posed the singers in front of some of Paris's most photogenic monuments and the camerawork by Intercontinental Television SA was superb. That's a great crew.

For instance, right at the outset, Les Djinns, a group of young girls with fine fresh voices, were discovered singing in the arches of Place des Vorges, a splendidly architectural background, that lovely song "Day that the Rains Came Down."

Then, there was a bit of nonsense with Fernandel at the Louvre which led to Jean Sablon singing "You Were Only Passing By" to a young girl in the Tuilleries. You can't improve on those settings and tape with its depth and clarity captures the breadth and coloring of the stone very well.

So it went. There was the Jo Basile Street Band playing Dixieland jazz in Montmartre; Patachou singing a love lament while walking the cobbled streets of Montmartre past the ancient shops; Dalida, the hottest singer in Europe at the moment, moaning low in St. Germain des Pres; Jacqueline Francois singing "The Seine" on a bateau mouche.

It all ended with Maurice Chevalier singing Cole Porter's "I Love Paris" on the steps of the Paris Opera elegantly set off by the Garde Republicaine—who are beginning to top the Swiss Guards as the most photographed bunch of soldiery in Europe.

If you hate scenery, you might find this all unbearably picturesque. I found it charming. The songs were delightful.

Of course, all these shows that venture abroad pick out the more obvious backgrounds. The Perry Como travelogue had shots of London Bridge, Buckingham Palace, the Houses of Parliament, the Abbey, the Thames, Covent Garden—but these things can be looked at again and again.

Of course, all this sight-seeing cut down the songs considerably. So far, in fact, that the producer had Como singing background music to some of the scenery. But, what the deuce, there is enough singing on television. I love these traveling shows. They stir up the entertainers, the writers, even the cameramen.

The world is full of scenery—the Greek Isles, Samoa, Hong Kong. Television promised to bring us to all those places before it got bogged down in the Warner Bros. lot in Hollywood, filming the same old horses again and again.

SHEILAH GRAHAM Visits London

Cary, Betsy Make Up

LONDON (NANA)—Cary Grant and Betsy Drake are occupying the same suite at the Savoy Hotel here. And Betsy went with Cary to Bristol to see his mother. Cary is obviously delighted to have Betsy with him, and if this isn't a reconciliation, all I can say is that they are happier than most happily married couples.

Had tea and cream puffs with Jean Simmons in her suite at the Dorchester, overlooking Hyde Park which is a mass of daffodils right now, and white, pink and green blossoming trees. "I'll be here three months," said Jean, "and for the first time in my 17 years of making pictures I'm allowed to wear good clothes—all by Dior." Jean's in "The Grass is Greener" with Mr. Grant, Deborah Kerr and Robert Mitchum.

Mitchum arrived at this point. Jean offered him tea and cream puffs, but both were sternly declined. If Robert is going to drink anything, he prefers something stronger.

Jean's husband, Stewart Granger, had hoped to be with her here. "But he has a TV series to do," said Jean. Their enchanting 3½-year-old daughter Tracy is with Jean. You should have seen her flirting with Bob Mitchum, who tries to act tough—but what a softie! Especially for little girls.

Met John Ireland at Les Ambassadeurs—I always believe to the popular John Mills restaurant to catch up with Americans in town. "I'm here to do a TV series—'The Cheaters,'" John told me, "and I'll take eight weeks off in the middle to do a film, 'Street-walker.'" Which reminds me, there aren't any on the London streets any more. Gives them a curiously deserted look.

Strolling in the sunshine down Park Lane, I bumped into a very svelte Binnie Barnes. "I have a lovely life as Mrs. (Mike) Frankovich (he's head of Columbia Pictures in Europe). We have a flat in Grosvenor House, a house in Sunningdale in the country. We do a lot of entertaining, which, come to think of it, is harder work than any so-called career."

At Caprice, where the food is always so good, Michael Wilding was munching with blonde wife Susan. Mike is finishing up in the "World of Suzie Wong" movie. "Next, a play, 'Gazelle in Park Lane,'" he said. Michael is the gazelle.

Producer Henry Sherak, lunching with his wife, boomed a "Hello!" and told me his play, "Settled Out of Court," could not wait for Wilfred Hyde White, who is held in Hollywood with the delayed Marilyn Monroe picture, "Let's Make Love." His new star is Nigel Patrick.

In Greece, "Guns of Navarone" has run into bad weather, delaying completion of the film in the London studio.

Care for All Douglas' Dream

Second of a series outlining battle over social insurance in Saskatchewan, where CCF government plans such a scheme and doctors and other political parties oppose it.

Sickness Survey Shows Poor People Can't Pay

By GEORGE BRIMMELL
REGINA (TNS)—A program of pre-paid medical insurance, which may become the main issue of Saskatchewan's provincial election in June, is a long-time dream of Premier T. C. Douglas.

Said the CCF premier, as he first announced his controversial plan: "All my adult life I have dreamed of the day when we would have health services available to all, irrespective of their individual ability to pay."

Mr. Douglas feels sure the voters will back his province-wide, compulsory, government-controlled medical insurance program because "there can be no argument about the advisability of having a plan which makes health services available to all."

Although two-thirds of the citizens of Saskatchewan are already covered by some form of pre-paid care, or health insurance, Mr. Douglas cites the findings of the 1951 sickness survey of the federal health department as evidence that his plan is the only complete answer.

That survey found "there was more sickness among the low income group than among the upper income groups—usually because of bad housing conditions, or poor diet or poor working conditions—but they got less medical care."

This would indicate, said the premier, "that there are a great many people who do not go to a doctor because they feel they cannot afford it."

Mr. Douglas also says a large percentage of the population either cannot afford the available private medical insurance, or else is ineligible for coverage through age or chronic illness.

Said the premier: "I think it's a fairly large group, and with the rising costs of medical care, it will become larger. Moreover, even people covered now are providing at a cost they can't afford to pay."

"This is the hub of the whole thing," he said, "when you have a private plan or a municipal plan, you can only finance it by a per-capita charge on each individual or family. This amount is the same whether the man earns $2,000 a year or $20,000 a year."

"The advantage of the government plan is that it can keep the per-capita tax low enough so that there is no average family that cannot pay the tax. The balance of the cost is paid out of general revenue—collected on the basis of ability to pay."

The government hopes that the cost of its medical plan can be held to the same as the hospital insurance plan that Saskatchewan was the first to institute—$17.50 per year for an individual, $35 for a family.

"But we will certainly not promise the electorate that we can keep it at the figure, recognizing, of course, that this will only cover part of the cost," Mr. Douglas said.

What about the charge of some of the province's doctors that it is "noxious" to make the health of the people a political issue?

"I can't see anything noxious about it," Mr. Douglas declared. "What would they say if we had an election and then introduced the medical program? We'd be told we were dictatorial... that we sneaked into office and then rammed it down their throats."

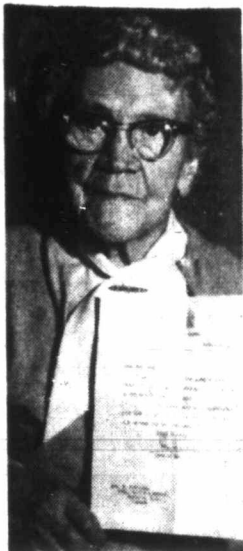

The doctors have challenged Mr. Douglas to show one case where medical care had been refused because of lack of ability to pay.

"This is a rather childish piece of exhibitionism," Mr. Douglas replied. "The doctors say they never send a fellow a bill if they know he's hard up. That's fine, and God bless them for their charity. But I don't want to be dependent on their charity."

What about the individuals whose religious beliefs are tied in with medicine? Would the government compel a Christian Scientist to pay the medical tax?

"People such as Christian Scientists would have to have the right to exemption if they wished," Mr. Douglas said. "I don't think we have the right to make them pay if it would be contrary to their religious beliefs."

Queen Thanks Victoria 'Poet'

Eighty-eight-year-old Mrs. A. M. Robinson, 1054 Burdett, yesterday received a letter from Queen Elizabeth thanking her for a poem and birthday card which she had mailed to Prince Andrew.

The letter written by the Queen's lady-in-waiting, stated:

"I write at the Queen's command to thank you for the good wishes which you have sent to Her Majesty and her family. The Queen very much appreciated your kind thought in writing and Her Majesty bids me send you her most sincere thanks."

Mrs. Robinson was surprised and very proud of the letter.

Defence Contracts Total $32,680,957

OTTAWA (CP)—Unclassified defence contracts valued at $32,680,957 were awarded to Canadian firms by the defence production department in the first two weeks of April.

WITH CARD

She said she had written a poem and enclosed it with a birthday card which she sent to Prince Andrew, care of the Queen.

Text of her short poem: Strength and courage, you will take

Like your Mother wide awake. And in Christ you will believe, A Father's blessing you will receive.

All around you peace and love Like the sun's rays up above. Bright and glorious you will be. The names you bear you need not fear. All that I have written is quite clear. You'll see the world and sail the seas. The air and sky will also please. The harbor lights so good to thee You will return, so wait and see.

Mr. Bonner is B.C.'s chief law enforcement officer.

Nurses Graduate

Main Jubilee Prize Won by Victorian

Elaine Fisher of Victoria took the top award and seven other city girls won prizes Sunday as 43 graduates of the 1960 Royal Jubilee Hospital class received diplomas in ceremonies at the Royal Theatre.

Miss Fisher, a graduate of Victoria High School, was awarded the Robert S. and Patricia Day memorial scholarship, symbolic of general proficiency in theoretical and practical work, as well as outstanding character of the recipient.

BEDSIDE NURSING

Jean Elizabeth Ross won the Florence Nightingale Chapter, IODE, prize for proficiency in bedside nursing. Awards for proficiency in clinical specialties went to Beverly Carol Graves and Mrs. Dolores Ruth Williams.

Mrs. Marlene Campbell, who posted the highest standing in RN examinations in the past

OUT-OF-TOWN

All other awards went to out-of-town girls studying at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Catherine Anne Storr of Courtenay won two awards, for operating-room technique and for achieving the highest aggregate examination standing.

MOST PROMISE

Other awards for proficiency in clinical specialties were won by Patricia Crandell Smith, Abbotsford; Janet Donna Rigby, The Pas; Ella Jean Walde, Kimberley, and Ann Lilly Wehrli, Briscoe, B.C.

Pacific Club Moves to Avoid Tax

By TED SHACKLEFORD

The Pacific Club board of management has made a move which will almost certainly remove it from the city's business tax roll, and could well save its liquor licence.

Alex Rogers, secretary of the club, confirmed last night the organization will no longer cater to meetings of other clubs. It will continue to serve meals to members and their guests.

The club was added to the business tax roll this year and a four-alderman court of revision removed the club from the roll. However, on appeal by the Vancouver Island section of the Canadian Restaurant Association, Mr. Justice J. G. Rutan declared the court of revision had exceeded its powers in removing the club from the roll.

The court of revision removed the club from the roll when it was assured that only members and their guests would be allowed in the club.

LOSE LICENCE

It was told that the club would lose its liquor licence if it remained on the roll.

The club stopped catering to non-members, except as guests of members, from Saturday, Mr. Rogers said.

"I would presume they would not be liable to the tax," one city hall official commented last night.

Another said: "It is possible for the assessor to put them on a supplementary roll... I think they should give some notice to the assessor."

He suggested they might be charged one-third of their business tax assessment, to cover the first four months of this year.

Homes and Gardens

Furniture, Appliances, Accessories

Home planning, modernizing, beautifying . . . these are the highlights of this special feature. It is designed to help achieve a more relaxed, carefree yet gracious way of living for all types of home enthusiasts.

Preparation Key To Good Paint Job

When brightening up the home with a painting job, do not expect good results unless all surfaces to be painted are thoroughly prepared.

If the surface is in paintable condition, thoroughly wash before painting. Where alligatoring or cracking is present the paint should be removed back to the wood by the use of paint and varnish remover or burning with a blowtorch and using a scraper.

If there is moisture, find where the moisture is entering the structure and correct it by closing with caulking compound.

Moisture generally creeps in around window and door casing of cracked boards. Where it is a case of condensation the home owner should get the advice of an experienced and competent paint dealer.

One of many fine gardens on display this week for Spring Garden Festival will be garden of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Todd, 451 Newport. It features wide expanses of lawns, colorful pheasants and other birds, an interesting rock garden and a home swimming pool, which is becoming the fashionable thing in Victoria.

Spring Garden Festival

Feast for Public Gaze

Through Victoria's door spring enters Canada, and once each year owners of some of this city's finest homes and gardens throw their gardens open to the public.

The occasion is the annual Spring Garden Festival sponsored by the Victoria Horticultural Society, and this year the festival will be May 5, 6 and 7.

Festival headquarters will again be at the C & C Taxi, 906 Government, and visiting hours will be 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. during which there will be specially arranged tours of selected gardens.

AT THEIR BEST

Gardens selected are expected to be at their very best for the festival so everyone may enjoy, admire and photograph the magnificent blending of spring blooms.

This year's tour will feature several new gardens and some which have been missing from the tours for a year or two.

One of the highlights will be a visit to Woodwynn Farm on West Saanich Road, home of Mrs. W. C. Woodward, widow of the former lieutenant-governor of B.C.

WORKED TOGETHER

Together in past years they worked to clear the garden area themselves. The beautiful big garden features huge trees, rhododendrons, azaleas, heathers, great expanses of lawn, and big rock gardens.

Back again this year will be Riffington at 3175 Beach Drive, home of Mr. and Mrs.

H. A. Wallace. This garden has a collection of mature conifers and many unusual types of hollies. It is a fine large garden with a natural setting for its many choice rhododendrons.

RARE FLOWERS

Also back this year is the garden of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Husband, 3150 Rutland, which has spacious lawns and rare alpine flowers. The intense blue of genetians and lethospermum vies with the changing shades of blue sea and may draw attention of the visitors away from some of the less conspicuous, but more interesting, miniatures in this garden.

Strangewood, the home of Mrs. S. L. McMullen, 1800 Tyndall, a big expanse of lawns and petrified wood from Alberta. It is one of the old type gardens which are not seen too often nowadays. The sunken petrified-wood rock garden has a Chinese moon gate. Deodar cedars line the driveway.

MANY OTHERS

More than a dozen other fine homes will be on display and are listed in the festival program.

There will be tea and rest stops in mid-afternoon each day, and on Saturday the stop will be at the Dominion Experimental Farm at Saanich.

"FOREST" CEDAR SIDING

WHAT IS FOREST SIDING?

Made of dry 1 1/2-inch stock, 10 and 12-inch widths. "FOREST" Siding is a new type of Siding obtained from specially selected Cedar logs sawn to show the beauty and character of knots, buris, etc.

WHAT ARE ITS QUALITIES?

"FOREST" Siding with its substantial thickness and greater wood volume adds to the structural strength and solidity of the building.

The design of "FOREST" Siding ensures a tight weather seal of the lap which, together with its thickness and flush-to-base principle, makes excellent material from the insulation standpoint.

"FOREST" Siding represents an economy to home-builders. Costing less than most other types of Siding, the lap design ensures easy fitting and speed application at less labor cost.

"RANCHPANEL"

The handsome new siding designed to give "NEW" natural beauty to your home, inside and out!

ONE LOOK and you'll want to "RANCHPANEL" RIGHT AWAY!

You'll want to be first to "RANCHPANEL" your home the very moment you get your first look at this distinctive new siding. Sawn from specially selected cedar logs and graded to accentuate the naturally beautiful markings of British Columbia cedar, new "RANCHPANEL" provides a delightfully different, unmistakably modern look wherever it is used. "RANCHPANEL" is the recessed batten vertical cedar siding.

"RANCHPANEL" is made in

NHA Loans to Dictate Shape of Homes in 1960

Modest Design Certain

About 1,100 homes, valued at $13,200,000, will be built in the Greater Victoria area in 1960, according to predictions of Leslie Bates, assistant manager of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation in Victoria.

That figure compares with 1,304 homes started last year at a value of more than $15,000,000.

Mr. Bates estimates that about 400 of the 1960 homes will be built through CMHC under the National Housing Act, down from 657 NHA starts in Greater Victoria last year.

TIGHTENED UP

Restrictions on obtaining CMHC loans have been tightened this year so that instead of being available to almost everybody, NHA loans, administered by CMHC, are now available only to two-child families earning less than $5,000 a year, and to four-child families earning less than $5,600 a year.

These restrictions will mean that NHA loans are now available to the lower-than-average wage earner and others will have to seek loans in the higher interest rate field from approved outside lending firms. Approved lenders may still have loans underwritten by CMHC under NHA.

MORE MODEST

Because CMHC only approves loans of up to 27 per cent of a family's income, NHA-built homes are almost certain to be of more modest and functional designs than they have been in recent years. It is obvious that home buyers will shop around more and that home builders will have to sharpen their pencils and build homes to suit a lower-income market.

Last year CMHC had $340,000,000 available from the federal government for loans, compared with $173,000,000 available this year, so money from that source will be harder to get.

BANKS OUT

Since the NHA loans were increased from 6 per cent interest to 6 1/2 per cent interest this year, the banks have gone out of the NHA loan business and loans under NHA must be secured from other sources such as insurance companies and other approved lenders.

And at the moment lenders are finding a much better market in provincial bonds and commercial-type loans, making home-building loans more difficult than ever to secure, except for the limited amount available through CMHC.

Conventional styling with brick veneer and stucco front makes an attractive home at 1509 Derby with imposing tree forming impressive frame.

ket in provincial bonds and commercial-type loans, making home-building loans more difficult than ever to secure, except for the limited amount available through CMHC.

But Mr. Bates doesn't believe the building industry is heading for a slump. He firmly believes that more conventional money will come into the market and be made available for builders at rates of 7 per cent upward. CMHC building under NHA, however, has got off to a slow start this year with only 29 homes completed up to March 31, compared with 172 units completed in the same period in 1959. But, Mr. Bates points out, there are now 82 unsold NHA houses on the market in Greater Victoria and these were built at last year's 6 per cent interest rates, which makes them a better buy than ever.

Saanich is still way out in the lead in home building in metropolitan Victoria. It had 664 starts and 855 houses completed in 1959. Victoria was next with 267 starts and 290 completions. Esquimalt had 169 starts, 150 completions; Oak Bay, 89 starts and 156 completions; Sidney, 26 starts and 36 completions; Central Saanich, 48 starts and 22 completions; and North Saanich 41 starts and six completions.

Last year half of the home building in Greater Victoria, to a value of $7,500,000 was under NHA through CMHC. Some 33.7 per cent of the CMHC lending in the Victoria area was to applicants with earnings between $4,000 and $5,000.

Under NHA, a family earning $5,000 a year and paying the minimum down payment could build a house valued at between $12,000 and $13,000 and payments would come to around $90 a month plus taxes, which average around $20 a month.

Phone in Every Room Now Commonplace

Telephones are meeting the demands for neatness and convenience in today's home planning services.

A phone in every room, from kitchen to bathroom and from the basement to the second floor level, is becoming common in planning for modern living.

Several services of the B.C. Telephone Co. are available to those planning new homes or renovations.

The company will pre-wire a home free of charge for the main telephone, plus any number of extensions required, and can save home owners much time and expense by ensuring that all details of telephone wiring are looked after at the time of construction.

Colored key set phones in five rooms with push-button controls is used for incoming calls to be answered and held while outgoing calls are made, or for inter-communication system between rooms in everyday luxury in Charles W. Beeler home, 3221 Pendray Road. Making a call is daughter, Jennifer.

Most modern families require more than one telephone, and during pre-wiring, wiring for telephones might be placed in bedrooms, den, recreation room, kitchen, upstairs rooms, workshop, garage or patio. Because of this, it is important that the company be approached during the early construction.

Telephones today measure up to the concept of modern fashion by incorporating pleasing lines and a wide selection of colors. For instance, telephones are available in 10 decorator shades and four metallic colors.

Colored key-set telephones in homes are becoming more in demand for convenience. A Victoria businessman has had installed in his home a colored key-set phone which permits incoming calls to be answered and held while an outgoing call is made.

Modern design is shown in the speakerphone, a unit which is becoming recognized by housewives as almost a necessity. To use it, the housewife merely flicks a switch at the base of the set and speaks and hears from several feet away.

With the approach of summer, telephone officials are advising home builders how to make best use of outdoor locations, with portable extensions for sun decks and patios.

Lots on Sewers Soon in Demand

Change in policy for granting NHA loans will place sewer lots in Saanich and elsewhere at a premium. Reeve George Chatterton said last night.

He was commenting on announcement yesterday that Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation will revert to its former policy of not granting NHA loans for construction of homes on non-sewered lots. It cause" for approval by voters of the twice-defeated Gordon Head sewage disposal plant scheme. "After the bylaw was turned down a second time, the coun-

Selling Your House Is Job for Specialist

Everyone who owns a home has a big investment. And when the time comes to sell that home, it's important to sell right to make sure the investment has been a good one.

There are those who feel they can do a good job of selling their own home, and many try—but few succeed. Every one has heard of people who have sold their own homes, slip through their fingers. Few, however, hear of the experience has shown that the people who have tried and failed, it's only human to make a success and keep a secret a failure.

With wide variety of patio furniture now available patio living can be luxurious for people in almost any income bracket. Mr. and Mrs. Roger Spurling, 3345 Hatley Drive, have ideal patio setup at their home, which overlooks Esquimalt Lagoon and Victoria Harbor. Slate tiled patio leads into basement rumpus room, is floodlit and has stereophonic music piped to patio for moonlight dancing.

Streamlined Luxury Adds Joy to Patio Ease and Fun

Summer furniture has gone modern.

In place of the cheerless and unimaginative relics of just a few years back, there is a totally new concept of summer furniture for outdoor living based on comfort, color and durability.

Most summer furniture is now made of lightweight metals and plastics that withstand sun, steam, rain and damp and do not dry out, fade, peel or crack.

BAD OLD DAYS

Gone are the days when Dad had to squeeze himself into a comfortless deck chair. Gone are the days when the outdoor furniture was relegated to the basement at season's end and then came out of dusty storage more dilapidated, faded and uncomfortable than ever.

WIDE UMBRELLAS

Today there are available a wide range of the most beautiful sun-beaters, giant umbrellas that provide shade and protection and fit in the centre of specially-built metal patio and lawn tables.

The sun umbrellas range from five feet to eight feet in diameter, and on some a side crank on the aluminum shaft of the umbrella opens and closes it to any width desired. Umbrellas over the table can be touch-tilted in any direction. Sun-struck shades of the umbrella help to brighten any patio.

To add further comfort to

Modern Aids to Comfort Replace Cheerless Relics

patio and outdoor living there is a wide variety of lightweight aluminum tea tables, rock steady and hand liftable.

Trees are no longer necessary for the luxury of a hammock. Aluminum hammock stands are now built and with them come nylon-saran hammocks that swing easily from the stands. They come complete with fringe sides and plastic pillows.

METAL FRAMES

Patio furniture is now almost all metal frame — aluminum or wrought iron — and synthetic fabrics are becoming more popular than canvas. They feature floral designs—something new for outdoor furniture.

Chairs are now framed with lightweight aluminum and rockers sway with the right amount of relaxing motion. Spring-filled cushions for lawn swings and chairs are usually covered with water-repellent vinyl plastic. To clean, just sponge with a damp cloth.

And if you don't like to swing, try a loveseat glider with adjustable ends. They

BARBECUES

Adjunct to outdoor life in the summer is the delight of outdoor cooking. 1960 style, on any of a score of fancy or simple barbecues now on the market.

Many families still prefer the built-in brick-style barbecue fires, but becoming more and more popular and more practical for the urban dweller are the new portable barbecues that have become so widely-used in the past few years. They may be purchased for $5 to $6 for the simple ones, or as elaborate barbecues costing more than $300.

ACCESSORIES

There are many specially-made barbecue tools and accessories.

The finest barbecues are of cold-rolled steel, with stainless steel hoods, more than 800 square inches of grill area, with an electric rotisserie, warming oven, redwood work table and storage area. They can cook up to 24 chickens at one time with a minimum of effort on the part of the chef.

WORKHORSES

Then there are the big practical workhorses of the barbecue line that may be easily moved out on to the patio on sturdy rubber-tired wheels and casters. According to their price range, these may feature a heat-deflector, hood, thermometer, grease drain, crank lift firebox for ease of operation, and a new copper-and-black-enamel finish that can take weather.

CAMPING

And priced very reasonably are the portable barbecues that can be easily carried in a car trunk and taken on fishing, picnic or camping trips. They come with or without rolling carts.

Selling just under $100 is a family-sized barbecue capable of cooking a full Sunday dinner for four, not to mention 20 hamburgers at one time. It comes complete with work table area, copper-and-black enamel finish that cleans easily, and weighs only about 75 pounds.

Peninsula Magnet Thanks to Ferries

The new provincial government ferry service which is scheduled to start next month is making Sidney and the North Saanich Peninsula one of the most desirable residential areas in British Columbia.

With the adjacent Patricia Bay Airport, the Washington State Anacortes ferry and the new fast ferries to the mainland, Sidney and the adjacent area is but a stone's throw from anywhere on the mainland.

SEASCAPES

Its lush rural areas and beautiful seascape properties are making this district the favored residential spot for both Victoria workers and those who would commute to work in Vancouver.

Its beautiful waterfront properties are also sought after by the wealthy businessman who seeks a haven from the rush of the business world—somewhere to fish, bathe, and relax in one of Canada's sunniest spots.

Sidney district provides several good yachting basins which make ideal takeoff points for a holiday in the Gulf Islands.

Sidney itself provides a bustling little shopping centre.

For Widow

Mortgage insurance is a good investment these days when few young families can afford to pay cash for a home. Insurance companies offer various plans of mortgage insurance, but they all have one thing in common: the widow is left with clear title to the home and will not have to continue to make mortgage payments while trying to raise and educate children, or sell the home quickly at a disadvantage with perhaps only a small equity.

Modern Charm

New Furnishings Made to Play Different Roles

With the modern trend to smaller homes and apartment living, furnishings have taken on a new aspect—they must be lightly scaled, compact and basic in order to fit smaller rooms and to adapt to more than one room, while imparting the charm and warmth of its specific style.

In both traditional and contemporary furniture, there is a large selection of mixable pieces that do all these things. There are chests, desks, cabinets, phonograph and TV storage units and chairs that are restricted to no one room, that can be added to or subtracted from, and can be arranged and re-arranged to form new pieces or completely new decors.

Sofas are among the most important of these mixables. They have a new chameleon quality that fits them into corners, bends them around curves, separates them into loveseats, daybeds or chairs. They can make a livingroom versatile and can turn a family room into a guest room.

New bedroom furniture, too, compact, modified lines. The accent is now on features that give the illusion of more room. The skillful co-ordination of furniture design and fabrics achieves this look of spaciousness in modern homes.

NEW STYLES

These trends are seen in Victoria homes where traditional furniture leads the field, but where transitional and contemporary furniture are becoming more apparent.

Preferences in woods and wood finishes vary from city to city, but in Victoria there is a rather predictable leaning toward rich, solids, including walnut, fruitwood, oak, and the traditional favorite, mahogany. Teak is also quite popular here and is seen in small, oriental-influenced pieces.

The surfaces of most wood in the new furniture lines have taken on a new, dulled, oiled glow, rather than a high, glazed gloss. This new finish resists wear and is easily cared for.

Every year kitchens become more efficient and beautiful, and the most important beauty features of 1960 kitchens are the "built-ins." Appliances are conveniently built into counters and walls, while floor space is left uncluttered. Half walls looking into dining areas give an air of spaciousness that makes both rooms look larger. Kitchen colors are planned to blend with adjoining rooms, to carry out this plan of roominess.

TABLE LAMP

Lighting in the modern home has also experienced a change. Table lamps in an endless variety of styles and sizes have, to a great extent, taken over from floor lamps. Table models up to four feet tall cast tinted glows over living rooms, bedrooms and dining areas.

Also much in vogue are adjustable hanging and pulley lamps that can change a dimly-lit corner into a favorite reading nook, a small dining area into a bright, airy room. The decorator's artistic sense of color and line enables him to suggest arrangements and combinations suitable and original for your home.

No longer are decorators called in only to advise on the decorating of mansions; some of the loveliest smaller homes and apartments in Victoria have been planned and arranged by local decorators.

The home building industry in the Greater Victoria area is facing a transition stage in 1960, and this year is expected to drop to about half of its level of recent years, according to officials of the Victoria Home Builders' Association.

Availability of money, except at high interest rates, and a definite buyer resistance to the cost and terms under which a person is required to build today have slowed down the home-building program.

LOWER COSTS

But there is a bright spot on the horizon for home buyers. The industry is now taking a second look at its business methods in an effort to reduce costs through new designs, research and construction techniques, and still offer the public a better product.

They are facing the problems of the future with gratifying determination and it appears they are going to come up with construction programs that will save buyers money and yet provide better homes.

RANCH TREND

The design trend in Greater Victoria is toward the spreading, ranch-type home, and with a trend to larger families and the fact that postwar babies are now becoming teenagers a great demand is building up for four-bedroom homes.

Two-storey homes, with the bedrooms upstairs, are again becoming popular. But these two-storey houses now differ from the ones in pre-war days which had full basements. Nowadays there is a trend towards houses without basements, but with adjoining carports and furnace rooms.

POST-AND-BEAM

Modified post-and-beam construction homes are again becoming popular and the trend is divided between conventional homes and contemporary homes.

The building trends, officials report, are to a great extent governed by the buyer's ability to pay for his requirements.

Over the past few years the home building industry has been operating around the nucleus of money provided by lending institutions under the terms of the National Housing Act. This act has given protection to the lending institutions and long-term loans at low interest rates were readily available.

The industry has been building houses and selling houses at a rapid pace over the past few years. As an assistance to this pace of building and the employment of a great number of men, it was considered necessary at different times to lower down payments, extend terms of loans and raise the interest rate on the money loaned.

Now the industry has reached the position where the payment of high interest rates and the availability of money has put home building beyond the reach of the average wage-earner.

Wonderful Things Are in Store for the Homes of 1970

The next 10 years are certain to see radical changes in home living — both in the kind of homes we live in and in the kind of furniture in those homes.

In a look at tomorrow, Western Construction and Building magazine says technological advances already achieved in other fields are going to be applied to housing construction and furniture manufacture.

New materials and new ways of using them will result in better products at lower cost.

A battle of materials is already shaping up among steel, light metals, plastics, ceramics and the like, as leaders of each industry eye the tremendous tonnage potential available in these still relatively unexploited fields: housing and furniture. Such materials, coupled with technological advantages, will bring about the breakthrough.

MORE PLASTICS

The materials used will largely determine the form and structure of tomorrow's homes. Plastics, for example, will be employed increasingly. Used today as insulation and for surface finishes, they will be used tomorrow for structural members as well.

The pre-fabricated "plastic sandwich" panel — an insulation sandwich of plastic foam between finished exterior surfaces — is likely to become the basic building unit. By the modular system of construction (the so-called "sky-scraper" technique) walls and roofs of these panels can be erected in one-third the time required for conventional construction, and at a fraction of the cost.

MORE SAVINGS

Costs can be further cut by incorporating window and door frames in these panels.

Many economies and conveniences are possible with this plastic-panel construction. Electro-luminescent lighting, for example: the panels will carry their own internal electric circuits, and their own interior surfaces will spread a soft, diffused light through the entire room. Rearranging the color scheme of such rooms will be a lot simpler. There will be no need for buckets and brushes and messes. Only the lighting surface will need to be changed to substitute one color for another.

Heating and cooling of these panel-built houses will similarly be achieved by means of thermo-electric devices within the panel walls. With this system, an electric current coursing in one direction will warm the interior surface; reversing the direction of the current will cool the house.

Important changes will also take place in the kitchens and bathrooms of tomorrow's homes. These will be bought as package units and inserted complete into the house. The bathroom especially lends itself to package treatment for lower-cost production.

Unitizing these two rooms will cut the cost of kitchens and baths in half and lower the cost of the whole house by about 10 per cent. This in turn will bring quality housing within reach of millions of more families, thereby substantially broadening the home construction market.

Tomorrow's bathroom, delivered as a complete unit, will include such conveniences as built-in towel warmers, towel cabinets, sunlamps, scales, shower doors, and even the home laundry equipment. Since 90 per cent of the family wash originates in bedrooms and baths, locating the automatic washer or dryer units in close proximity will save thousands of needless steps.

To provide quality housing at a price families can afford, tomorrow's homes must be mass-produced. But mass production doesn't necessarily imply sameness or monotony. There will be scores of master plans for the prospective owner to choose from — plus a limitless number of variations to suit his individual taste.

Guided by an expert factory representative, the home-seeker will make his personal selection at the local building "store." His order will be tele-typed to the factory, the schedule of parts and materials will be compiled from punch cards by an electronic computer, and the order filled and shipped.

Once the components have been delivered to the building site, the new home will be put up in jig time by factory-trained erectors.

The larger kitchen appliances will become more mobile, and will be treated more like furniture. Stoves and dishwashers will snap up and come running — ready for use wherever they are wanted.

Electronic ranges, new refuse-disposal methods and oxy-catalysts will make it possible to cook in almost any room. And, with space becoming more valuable every year, kitchens will get smaller and other areas — family rooms, patios, and the like — will do double duty.

The small kitchen area in tomorrow's home will have built-in, floor-to-ceiling cabinets and refrigerator units with elevator shelves, plus such conveniences as a built-in recipe selector that electronically projects on the kitchen wall a full-color picture of the desired dish, together with a list of ingredients and complete preparation instructions.

The advances that improve homes in housing and appliances that will become a part of tomorrow's living will come from researcher, engineer and designer.

vital to the appearance and performance of today's cars!

Nickel alloy steels are stronger, tougher and more durable than ordinary steels. That's why nickel alloy steels are used in automotive transmissions, engines and other parts that must withstand hard wear and severe abuse. Nickel plating is used under chrome for the "brightwork" on cars. On bumpers, grilles and trim, it's this heavy coating of nickel beneath the surface layer of chrome that provides the real protection against rust, corrosion and wear... for lasting beauty in depth.

Nickel stainless steel is used for wheel covers and other trim. Nickel helps give stainless steel its strength and corrosion resistance, providing resistance to flying gravel and to the corrosive action of de-icing salts, tar, asphalt and other destructive chemicals.

Grease Big Enemy Of Painted Walls

The majority of painting troubles inside the home occur in the kitchen and bathroom and are caused almost invariably by not washing walls and woodwork.

Grease from cooking, no matter how good a housekeeper one is, will accumulate on all paint surfaces, even when ventilator fans are used. Try tri-sodium phosphate, commonly known as TSP. It is still the best grease remover and your dealer can give you information as to how strong a solution to use.

Neighborhood Decay Can Kill Investment

It Can Happen To You!

By BRAHM WIESMAN
Planning Director
Capital Region Planning Board of B.C.

No one wants to live in a dying neighborhood, but most of us do!

The difference is that while some neighborhoods grow old gracefully and can continue to provide many years of satisfactory residential environment, others grow old more abruptly; they become run-down, worn out, neglected and unpleasant.

The fact that neighborhoods do have varying cycles of growth, development, obsolescence, decay and, perhaps, regeneration, may appear highly theoretical but when the time comes for Mr. Homeowner to sell and he finds that he is going to suffer a loss because his neighborhood is no longer desirable, or that he is going to make a profit because the environment has improved, then changes in neighborhood values become a very practical problem.

The obvious questions facing Mr. Homeowner are: Can he recognize the signs of neighborhood decay? Can he know in which direction values are moving? and, most important of all, is there anything he can do to conserve neighborhood values and the investment in his home?

Two extremes may be described: one is a neighborhood of badly deteriorated and neglected dwellings, adjacent to an industrial area, and the other is a neighborhood of uniformly large, well-built homes where there is a high standard of municipal improvements and a strict enforcement of building, zoning, and housing codes.

At these extremes, Mr. Homeowner will have no difficulty recognizing the signs of neighborhood decay or of appreciating in which direction values are moving; but these neighborhoods are the exception, and in between is a vast area of some uncertainty where most people find their homes.

In this area the homeowner can not be sure of the future and he should be interested in neighborhood conservation.

The simplest approach to the prevention of neighborhood decay is for each homeowner to maintain his own property in a good state of repair and for all property owners acting jointly through their municipal government to construct and to maintain in good condition, municipal improvements such as streets, sidewalks.

drainage, street lighting, tree planting, parks and schools, and to adopt and enforce suitable standards for the construction and occupancy of buildings and for the use of the land.

But in areas where decay and obsolescence are already advanced, one homeowner maintaining and landscaping his cottage in perfect condition may be courageous and proud of his home, but alone he will not change the quality of the neighborhood.

A more comprehensive and penetrating approach is needed and this has been started by the City of Victoria, which has now embarked on an "urban renewal study."

Funds for this study have been provided by the federal government through Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Through the corporation and the National Housing Act, the government has stimulated the construction of more than 1,000,000 new homes in Canada during the postwar period.

The 60s are therefore seen as a fortunate period in which planning and investment can be directed to redeveloping, rehabilitating, improving and conserving existing housing and the neighborhoods in which they occur.

Redevelopment is the process of acquiring and clearing blighted areas to make the land available for its best purpose. If federal funds are used, then housing must be made available for the displaced residents.

Rehabilitation is the process of improving and repairing areas that are becoming blighted.

Conservation is the process of retarding the causes of decay through property maintenance, the provision of a good standard of municipal improvements and facilities, and the adoption and enforcement of suitable building, occupancy and land use controls.

In each of these processes there is a role for private and public enterprise; together, they can form a community plan for urban renewal.

Quality Costs Less Here

Victoria district has the lowest priced quality homes in all of North America, but on the basis of this year's average the down payments at $1,000,000 a month are among the highest, says William Bailey, president of the Real Estate Board of Victoria.

Mr. Bailey points out that people who buy homes in Victoria get double the value because of the lower prices and the better living conditions. "Climate and scenic conditions here are better than in most other places," he says.

And his opinions are backed by Bert Katz, vice-president of the Canadian Association of

... bright outlook.

Don't Switch to Oil Heat Without Competent Survey

In Victoria the predominant trend in automatic home heating is oil heat. When considering a change to automatic heating, a good deal of thought must be given to the size, structure, age and location of the home.

Proper installation depends on a competent heating engineer first making a complete survey of the heating requirements. The furnace must be of correct heat output to suit the requirements of the home.

Biggest oil user in an automatic system is not the oil burner, but the filter system of the return air. If filters are allowed to clog up, the air for carrying heat away from the furnace cannot pass through the chimney instead of into the home. This causes the furnace to get too hot, and the heat passes up the chimney instead of into the home.

Mother Gets A Break

Home Service Centre
B.C. Electric Co.

For 250 years one of the favorite desserts on this continent has been apple pie—apple pie with a cheese crust, green apple pie, deep apple pie, apple and raisin pie, any kind of pie, as long as it's apple. Cooked best by mother, this creation is hard to beat.

But, what about mother's efforts to produce this family favorite? She has always injected her own personality into her apple pie—and she has always tried to produce the best apple pie ever. She has had to work hard at it.

It wasn't easy to bake a pie in an open hearth oven, but she did it. It wasn't much easier to bake in a wood stove—though after years of trial and error, she knew that with four sticks of wood the fire was just right. Mind you, mother was hot and weary after struggling all day with the black beast—and the kitchen was an inferno.

CONTROLLED HEAT

Then the first gas and electric ranges were built—and what an improvement for mother! She was able to control the oven heat and her apple pie tasted very good. She didn't have to spend as much time stoking the stove, so she could spend a bit more time doing extra baking and generally enjoying life.

In 1960, with completely automatic gas and electric ranges—and the revolutionary electronic range—an apple pie is as simple as ABC.

Samuel Pepys wrote in 1666: "Home and being washday, dined on cold meat." Not so, in 1960.

Revulsion World-Wide in Chessman Killing

LONDON (UPI)—The execution of Caryl Chessman touched off a worldwide wave of revulsion that rapidly developed into anti-American outbursts in some countries. (See also Pages 3 and 17.)

A crowd of 150 students demonstrated outside the U.S. embassy in Montevideo, Uruguay, shouting "murderers" and "assassins" in protest against the gassing of Chessman.

Police in Stockholm sent extra radio cars to the vicinity of the U.S. embassy to head off any possible attacks. Feeling ran particularly high in Scandinavia.

Police arrested three students at the U.S. consulate in Montreal.

The tendency was to blame all Americans and the United States for his death.

"Shame on the United States," an Italian in Milan screamed over the phone to the UPI bureau. "I will spit in the face of the next American tourist I meet in the street... barbarians."

An Italian newspaper headlined, "Chessman killed in the gas chamber: cruel America."

Crowds gathered outside a Rio de Janeiro newspaper to protest and denounce the United States as a "miserable country." Brazil has refused an extradition treaty with the United States because of Brazilian opposition to U.S. capital punishment.

In Rome, where the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano had denounced the plans to execute Chessman as barbaric, all newspapers carried ominous front page reports of the moments leading to execution and then black headlines to proclaim that Chessman was dead.

In London, the News Chronicle called the case a "squalid melodrama" that infected American justice with "an aura of sensationalism and cruelty."

Esquimalt Mill Rate Unchanged

There will be no increase in the Esquimalt mill rate this year, a pleased Reeve A. C. Wurtele announced last night after council completed its budget debate.

"Where in 1959 our mill rate of 39 was divided, 19 for schools and 20 for general levy," said the reeve, "this year it will be 19.6 for schools and 19.4 for general purposes."

"This may mean some reduction in the work done through the municipality this year, but in long consideration of the budget we felt the public, at a time of general increases in expenses, would be happy over a mill rate that went unchanged."

Misdial Killed Stay for Caryl

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A misdialled telephone number may have cost Caryl Chessman a stay of execution Monday.

Federal District Judge Louis Goodman was prepared to grant a 30-minute stay of execution but was told the pellets had just been dropped.

The judge said his secretary, Celeste Hickey, misdialed the San Quentin number, getting only four digits instead of five.

Mayor Walks Out, Council Goes On

ALBURNI — City council kept working last night after Mayor Mabel Anderson walked out when she failed to stop the meeting with a proclamation of adjournment.

Trouble arose when the mayor refused to put to a vote a seconded motion to receive and file a letter from the newly formed Alburni Voters' Association. She claimed the letter, announcing its formation and giving its bylaws, did not constitute city business.

When Ald. P. S. Barnett challenged her ruling she refused to put the question, "Shall the chair be sustained," she declared. "The mayor has the right to make a proclamation you do not challenge the proclamation," she said.

Ald. C. M. Blair was called on by Ald. Barnett to put the vote of challenge which passed while the mayor was still upholding her right to end the meeting by proclamation. Council refused to abide by her order and for several minutes the meeting degenerated into an argument over rights of the mayor in relation to wishes of the council.

Q-Day minus 18.

We have forewarned smoking before breakfast and for an hour after meals for three days now, and we are brushing our teeth as though preparing to do a master's thesis on enamel erosion.

The question is, is it getting any easier?

Or, putting it another way, is it getting any harder?

PRETTY SMILE
I find that brushing my teeth is getting easier but that my desire to smoke before breakfast and after meals is just about the same. You could say I am gargling better, though.

DAUGHTER LOYAL

My two-year-old daughter gargles right alongside me every morning in a fine display of family solidarity. Of course she isn't quitting smoking like me. (She smokes less than a package a day so she figured it wasn't worth it.)

Several people who are going along with me on the Arthur King cure have said they like the idea of a 21-day build-up compared with the system of simply throwing the cigarettes away one day and doing it "cold turkey."

FIRST TIME

These people have all tried to kick the habit before, with what Mr. King would call "indifferent success."

I never did really try to stop smoking before—except once.

I quit at 10 o'clock one morning while trying to climb a small mountain in the interior of B.C. and resumed again at three in the afternoon.

SLIGHT DELAY

I would have resumed earlier except it took about an hour to climb back down the mountain to where I had thrown the package away and half an hour crawling around on my hands and knees through the underbrush trying to find it.

That pretty well wrapped up quitting smoking as far as I was concerned until Arthur King came along.

A man tends to lose much of his conviction that he has mastered the world while crawling about on hands and knees looking for a cigarette on a mountainside.

James Bay District May Lose Firehall

By R. O. MARRION

City council will decide today if it is going to close the James Bay firehall and dismiss 14 firemen to save the taxpayers about $100,000.

If the firehall is closed, it will be over the strongest of protests from Fire Chief James Bayliss.

BARE MINIMUM

But council, bearing in mind the 11-per-cent wage increase an arbitration board gave firemen and policemen this year, seemed about evenly divided when it decided to sleep on the question.

HUMAN LIVES

Ald. Austin Curtis, who with Aldermen Hugh Ramsay and Mrs. Lily Wilson opposed cutting the force, said council should look at the proposal from the point of view of human lives. "I'd feel awfully badly if one or two people lost their lives as a result."

On the other hand, Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood, who proposed the cutback, and was supported by Mayor Percy Scurrah, argued that "you can always get very sentimental about statements like that... We've got to be realistic about it."

HIGHLIGHTS

Among highlights of the debate:

Fire Chief Bayliss said his force of 38 men, 76 of them actually fire-fighters, was down to rock-bottom; if there was a fire in a big hotel with "a lot of laddering to save people I don't know how I would do it"; the James Bay pumper served the whole area south of Oak Bay Avenue and Pandora and was first equipment to arrive at big hotels, the Bapco paint plant, St. Ann's Academy, St. Joseph's Hospital.

"Picture in your minds Bapco going up in smoke and me arriving with 15 men," he said.

20 YEARS

Mayor Scurrah argued that Bapco had operated for 20 years without a James Bay firehall.

He also told council the provincial government was not interested in whether or not the hall was kept open, and noted that Burnaby with nearly twice as many people had an 86-man force.

Ald. Elmer McEwen said that in another 10 years the fire department would be "eating up half the budget, and we can't afford that." He also held that "the insurance people should provide the fire protection. There's nothing in the Municipal Act to say we should provide it."

Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood held that "we haven't been calling in the fire departments of the adjoining municipalities, and that shows we haven't needed them."

'Aunt Marys' Forced To Welfare?

People who think it's a real smart thing to get old Mother or old Aunt Mary on welfare are worrying city welfare committee chairman Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, she told council yesterday.

"There are a lot of our distinguished citizens who think it's smart to take what Aunt Mary has and put her on welfare," she said. "I could name names..."

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Sun says in a Hong Kong dispatch that the B.C. Electric Company is negotiating to buy plastic gas pipe and a bus fleet in Japan.

The newspaper quotes H. L. Purdy, executive vice-president of the company, in a statement made at the Vancouver Board of Trade off-shore mission, now touring Asia, left for Tokyo.

The paper says the bus deal alone would cost the company about $1,250,000.

"Purdy said buses and pipe made in Canada are about 50 per cent more expensive than Japanese," the newspaper says.

Chessman Died 1,000 Deaths, Victorians Feel

Victoria residents viewed the execution of Caryl Chessman with mixed feelings last night, but were almost unanimous on one point—innocent or guilty, he should not have been kept waiting so long.

Some thought him guilty, others considered him innocent. But the general feeling of a telephone survey was summed up by J. F. Dykes, 2121 Fair Street.

"I believe he was guilty, but I disagree with the way they went about it. He should have been made to pay for his crimes, but they were all wrong in waiting 12 years before doing anything about it."

There were those who were glad Chessman was executed, regardless of the wait.

"He got what was coming to him, that's all," said C. W. Boulter, 2548 Empire.

"He should have been dead years ago. I have no sympathy for him at all," said Arthur Williams, 311 Gorge Road West. "He never should have been allowed to live as long as he did."

However, others asked gave their answers with a note of reservation about Chessman's 12-year wait in a death cell.

"I should have been done 12 years ago," said G. L. Thomas, 1400 Gladstone. "If he wasn't innocent now, he wasn't innocent then. But this waiting around was no good, especially for that poor man suffering through all that waiting."

"After 12 years I don't think he should have been executed," said Mrs. Norman K. Jones, 1336 Burleigh Crescent. "He was up for execution so many times he probably died 1,000 times. If the U.S. couldn't make up its mind in 12 years, it's not much of a country."

Her sentiments were echoed by S. E. Webb, 115 Croft. "It's a disgrace to civilization. If they can't find out in 12 years whether a man is innocent or guilty they should quit. It's disgusting."

"I think that when the man had been subjected to the torture of waiting and waiting he paid a sufficient penalty," was the opinion of Mrs. H. N. Kerr, 700 Daisy. "At least they could have changed his sentence to life imprisonment."

Ernest G. Brown, 1010 Foul Bay Road, also thought life imprisonment would have been "a fairer decision," and Frank W. Smith, 1358 Craigflower added that "he claimed he was innocent, and I don't think the courts really proved him guilty."

"Justice was done," said Mrs. W. H. Sutcliffe, 2420 Bowker. But after 12 years of waiting, Caryl Chessman died yesterday, and Mrs. A. J. Barton, 90 Bay Street, expressed an opinion shared by many.

"I don't know whether he was innocent or guilty," she said. "I'm just glad it's over at last."

Three Gas-Poisoned Fishing Off Nanaimo

NANAIMO—Three persons suffered carbon monoxide poisoning while fishing off Nanaimo Saturday evening. All have been released from hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lines, Campbell River, and Mrs. Elaine McLean, Winnipeg, were overcome by exhaust fumes of a small cruiser, owned by R. H. Leighton, 43 Machleary Street, while fishing off Five Fingers about two miles west of the city.

Mr. Leighton, the only one not affected by the deadly gas, turned the boat homeward and others became giddy and passed out.

They received treatment from fire department inhalator crew and were then taken to hospital. Mrs. Lines was detained in hospital overnight.

Festival Open

NANAIMO—Earl Westwood, minister of recreation and conservation, officially opened Nanaimo's upper-island music festival last night at the senior high school.

The festival began Monday morning with classes in piano for children under twelve, Boris Roublakane, Royal Toronto Conservatory of Music, heard classes at St. Andrew's United Church during the morning and afternoon competitions.

Today piano classes are continuing at St. Andrew's United Church Hall.

Miss Nanaimo

NANAIMO—Three hundred persons saw Sandra McMinn, 18-year-old National Employment clerk, crowned Miss Nanaimo 1960 at ceremonies here Saturday night.

Miss McMinn, five foot six inches and 36-23-35, was crowned shortly after midnight by Mayor Pete Maffeo.

She was tops of nine contestants.

Her princesses are Jean Bennett, 17, of 1640 Hawkins and Lynne Dunmore, 16, of 1020 Strathmore. Miss McMinn was sponsored by the Kiwanis Club.

She received the CHUB Miss Nanaimo Trophy. The contest is sponsored annually by the Nu Phi Mu sorority.

which will see Nanaimo become B.C.'s capital for the day. Harold Snider, local co-ordinator, said last night last minute details for the province-wide communications test were completed.

Government officials from Victoria and army units from the mainland will converge on Nanaimo by car, bus and boat. The RCAF and RCMP will also participate in the exercises.

Church Blessed

NANAIMO—Almost 1,500 persons participated here in Sunday's opening of a new Roman Catholic church.

Bishop J. M. Hill of Victoria, blessed Mount St. Peter's Church during ancient rites Sunday afternoon while an estimated 1,000 persons looked on.

The church, a Romanesque-style buff brick, that can seat up to 900 was jammed with Catholics and others of many faiths.

During the evening, 500 guests attended the first function in the beautiful church's new basement, the largest hall in the city.

Earl C. Westwood, recreation minister, congratulated Catholics on their achievement. Mayor Pete Maffeo headed a delegation of city representatives, while Rev. John Snowden, Anglican minister, spoke for clergymen of other faiths.

At least 50 priests and close to 100 nuns attended the ceremonies. Dr. Miladin Zorkin was master of ceremonies at the banquet.

The church commands a view of almost all Nanaimo and its 85-foot spire, with a background of mountains, dominates the city's skyline.

Mrs. V. W. Grant's house at Beaver Point, was saved from complete destruction by prompt response from close neighbors, the G. Reynolds family and other neighbors, when fire started from a spark on the roof.

Neighbors were on the spot within a minute and poured water on the roof, says Mrs. Grant. Beaver Point is out of the Fire Protection District and it is not permissible or possible for the fire truck to assist in any unprotected district.

Big Celebration

FULFORD—After about 35 years celebrating (Victoria Day) at Fulford, the Fulford Hall committee has decided to hold the celebration at Ganges on May 23.

It is hoped to have a really big celebration, with queen, floats and all the trimmings.

Queen for this year is Miss Kathy Butt, of Beaver Point, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Butt. Princesses are Miss Elizabeth Beech, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Beech, of Ganges and Miss Kathy Morrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Morrison of Ganges.

Above Average

PARKSVILLE—Above average rainfall was recorded by Parksville weatherman G. M. Bernard, who measured a total of 3.19 inches for the month of April compared to the 10-year average of 1.74 inches.

Lowest temperature of the month was 30 degrees on April 16 and the highest temperature was 67 degrees on April 28.

Kinsmen Club

PARKSVILLE—Thanks to Parksville Kinsmen Club there will be a parade here after all this year preceding the annual May Queen crowning and celebrations on May 21.

The club is advertising for float entries and some have already been received. Prizes of $25, $15 and $10 are being awarded for the best floats.

The parade will be entirely under the auspices of the Kinsmen Club and Jack Anderson will be parade marshal.

The club is advertising for float entries and some have already been received. Prizes of $25, $15 and $10 are being awarded for the best floats.

and also cash prizes to children for decorated bicycles, tricycles and other items, also best costumes.

Concession booths and rides for the kiddies also are included in the club plans. Robert Doughty is chairman of the Kinsmen part of the program.

Suspension

SHAWNIGAN LAKE—Lawrence H. Thibodeau, resident here, had his driver's licence suspended for 60 days in court here yesterday.

He pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving laid after an accident Saturday when his car sideswiped another two miles north on Old Victoria Road. Damage was $900.

P. G. Cudlip, justice of the peace, also fined Thibodeau $25 and $5 costs and permitted until May 12 to pay.

Power Squadron

DUNCAN—Fastest growing pleasure traffic is in the field of boating.

And a natural outcome of the now popular sport is the power squadron for teaching safety and handling.

That was the reason for starting the group said Alexander Neville of Port Credit, Ont., executive vice-commander of Canada's 3,500 members.

He told a group here Sunday that people will get more out of boating if they "know what they are doing."

He presented Cowichan power squadron members with advanced seamanship and navigation certificates. They were Dr. G. C. Walker, Lee Seizer, John Dunning, George Paton, Robert Stewart and John Grieve.

NANAIMO—The only serious trouble caused by 12,000 new dial telephones here has been unsure index fingers and the resulting wrong numbers.

Sunday morning at 12:01 a.m. the B.C. Telephone Company switched telephones in Nanaimo, Chemainus and Parksville from manual to dial operations. Calls were being monitored seconds before the new system went into emergency.

Intense to insure that emergency calls were not interrupted. Nanaimo has approximately 9,800 of the new phones.

Mopday, telephone service was smooth and there were few reports of dissatisfaction. Wrong numbers were common and the odd person waited patiently for an operator's voice that wasn't heard.

DUNCAN—Latest jet models—on boats—will be shown here this weekend at the Kiwanis boat and sportsman's show.

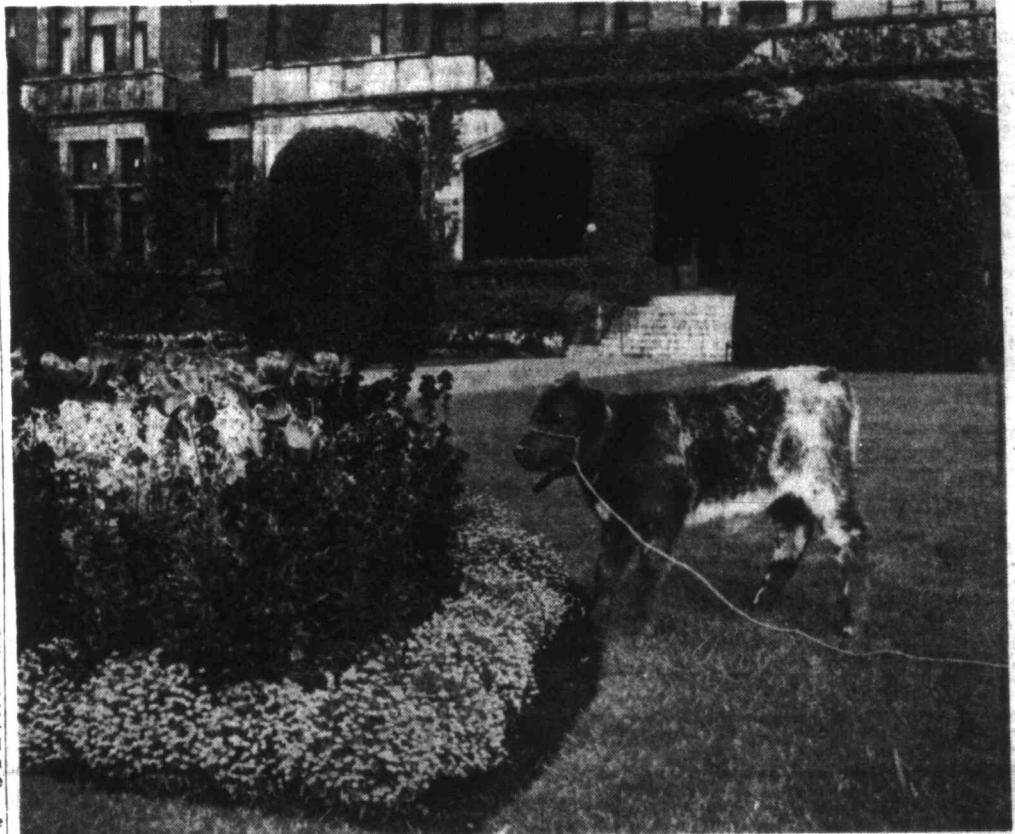

The revolutionary new ship that runs on a jet stream of water will be one of many exhibits at the second annual event.

Club officials said all the money made will go toward charities.

All makes and styles of boats—from carloop to cruisers—will be shown Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the curling rink.

Other attractions will be a demonstration by skin divers, fly tying and the latest in outdoor equipment.

DUNCAN—Walter G. Ritchie of Victoria was fined $20 and $5.50 costs in police court yesterday for speeding at 70 mph near Mill Bay on April 17. He pleaded guilty.

DeWolf Pays Last Visit

West Coast Sailors to Man Sub Coming Here on Loan

The U.S. submarine Burrfish, coming to Esquimalt on a five-year loan, will be manned almost entirely by sailors now serving on this coast, Vice-Admiral H. G. DeWolf said yesterday.

The chief of naval staff, paying his last visit to Pacific Command before his retirement in August, said having the submarine on the West Coast for training of navy ships and RCAF maritime aircraft "will be of tremendous advantage."

The Royal Canadian Navy, Admiral DeWolf said, has been "very sadly lacking in training submarine," and the three Royal Navy submarines on the Atlantic Coast, partly manned by Canadians, "only partly meet our naval and air force requirements. Both services are growing, the air force needs a lot of time on target submarines and we have more ships than ever on anti-submarine work."

First fitting out of the submarine will be done in U.S. yards, he said, but "I think we can do almost all the normal maintenance of a conventional submarine here."

Admiral DeWolf paid tribute to the man who will succeed him as chief of naval staff,

Rear-Admiral H. S. Rayner, flag officer Pacific Coast—"I'll turn over the reins of office to the greatest confidence."

He hopes, he said, that Admiral Rayner's successor at Esquimalt will be named in the next few days.

Looking back over his 42-year share of the Royal Canadian Navy's 50-year history, Admiral DeWolf picked 1922 as the lowest point for the navy in that time: the year when a decision was made to eliminate the navy, although the government changed its mind.

NHA Loans Asked For Old Homes

By HARRY YOUNG Colonist Business Editor

If the government would approve NHA loans for second-hand homes part of the present difficulties besetting the Canadian building industry would be eased, said Jack Soules, president of the Canadian Construction Association in Victoria last night.

The president from Port Credit, Ont., on an official trip, spoke at the annual general meeting of the Victoria Building Industries Exchange.

Mr. Soules said the CCA wanted the government to amend the National Housing Act to make existing houses eligible as was the case in the United States.

"This policy was being strongly espoused by the CCA housing committee chairman, V. L. Leigh of Victoria, as a good way to make home ownership more widely possible," said Mr. Soules.

"Most people when they first buy a motor car, buy a second-hand model," said Mr. Soules. "In using a used house, however, a family cannot purchase it with an NHA loan, but has to invest a substantially higher down payment and pay the higher interest rates of a conventional mortgage."

He suggested if NHA financing was available "trading-up" in homes could be more easily accomplished than it is at present.

He added that if the 1960 target of 125,000 new housing units was not met—and it looked doubtful at present—the act should be changed to include the older structurally sound second-hand homes.

Asked later if the CCA had given the government any idea as to how the Act should be amended, Mr. Soules said that the CCA recommendation was on the broadest possible terms.

University Fund Tops $1,500,000

Victoria University building fund has gone over the $1,500,000 mark, a meeting of the management committee was told yesterday, and there is every indication that the $2,500,000 goal will be reached before the fund closes at the end of five years.

Total to date is $1,500,404.

NANAIMO (CP)—Moe All of Cowichan Lake has been elected president of the Vancouver Island Firefighters' Association.

Richard Emery of Colwood was elected vice-president, Pat Clarkson, North Cowichan, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Between 50 and 60 representatives of island fire departments attended the annual meeting here during the weekend.

and the committee agreed yesterday to extend the campaign to May 31 in order to allow for "mopping up" and completion of call-backs.

There were encouraging signs that there is still a great deal of money to come in for the fund.

In the last 50 working days, money has been coming in at the rate of $21,581 per day. The residential canvass has already netted $21,833, with only half of the 600 envelopes opened.

Among the larger donations received from big business were $50,000 from MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River; $10,000 from Standard Oil of British Columbia; $7,500 from London Life Insurance, and $3,000 each from Crown Life Insurance and Confederation Life Insurance.

Colquitz Mental Hospital

'Hold Your Horses' Martin Tells Critics

Critics of the treatment program at Colquitz Mental Hospital should "hold their horses," Health Services Minister Eric Martin said yesterday.

Asked to comment on charges by volunteer mental health workers that Colquitz is more like a jail than a treatment centre, the minister said he would have nothing to say until the government hears the recommendations of a U.S. psychiatric expert who conducted a study of B.C.'s facilities and future needs last year.

The report of Dr. Mathew Ross, an official of the American Psychiatric Association, is expected later this year.

Attention was focused on the Colquitz mental home on April 24 after a Sanic police constable was slain while trying to recapture an inmate who had armed himself with rifles stolen from the asylum's adjacent farm.

Local mental health group spokesmen said the institution had no apparent treatment program and a Vancouver official said it was more like a penal institution than a hospital.

"These people are 'way off base—they should hold their horses,'" Mr. Martin said.

He said Dr. Ross was retained by the province in the realization that concepts in mental health care are changing.

"I'm a layman, he is the expert... we are paying him money."

Preliminary indications are that the province will be advised to decentralize its mental institution facilities, the minister stated.

'Whiplash' Injuries Discussed in Nanaimo

NANAIMO (CP)—The importance of immediate treatment of whiplash accidents was stressed over the weekend at the seventh annual "Island rendezvous" of the Chiropractors' Association of B.C.

The most common cause of whiplash accidents is rear-end collisions in automobiles. When struck unawares, a passenger's head and neck is "whiplashed."

"If early treatment is not obtained," said Dr. William Lindsay of Nanaimo, "extensive and permanent damage to the bones of the spine and to soft tissues of the injured area may occur."

Dr. Lindsay also pointed out that physical and psychological symptoms resulting from whiplash accidents may not show right away.

"It is no uncommon for the damage to manifest itself in a variety of ways a month, or even two or three years, after the accident," he declared.

Some common signs of whiplash damage are numbness, tingling and pain in the hands, shoulders and arms, and interference with circulation.

Dr. William Braidwood of Vancouver, Dr. R. G. Boak of Abbotsford, Dr. Murray Coulter of Campbell River, and Dr. E. T. Cornhill of Duncan participated in a technique symposium Sunday.

President Mrs. W. O. Morgan of Vancouver chaired a meeting of the association's women's auxiliary.

Sam James Joyce, Richards Trail, told the court that his wallet with more than $140 in it was missing since he started drinking Saturday.

He pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk in public. Police said he was arrested in town and "re-moved for his own good and that of the public."

Friends Honor E & N Veteran

Scores of old friends and fellow employees of Albert B. McNeill of the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway Co. attended his retirement dinner Saturday in the Empress Hotel.

Mr. McNeill, who retired as chief clerk to the superintendent after 48 years with the company, was presented with a pair of binoculars by fellow employees.

The warning was given by police magistrate A. C. Sutton yesterday in court to Fred Kilner, Chemainus, who was charged with passing in an area protected with a solid centre line.

Kilner was charged after passing in heavy traffic on the Trans-Canada Highway April 16. Police called it "a very poor move." Fine was $15 and $5.50 costs.

"I advise you to look up the law on it. It has been amended and is now a lot stiffer. As I see it, you can't cross over the centre line no matter what kind it is."

He was referred to amendments made to Section 137 of the Motor Vehicle Act, made in the 1960 sitting of the legislature.

Driver Makes Pledge

DUNCAN — A truck driver promised in court he would never drink and drive again after having his driver's licence suspended for 30 days.

George Ruckledge, 38, of Cobble Hill, said: "I promise I'll never let this happen again. My record means too much to me. Truck driving is all I know."

He pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving when he appeared in court yesterday. Ruckledge was also fined $150 and $6.50 costs.

Police said he was arrested after a three-and-a-half mile chase at 2.30 a.m. Sunday when he evaded a police roadblock on the Trans-Canada Highway south of here. He admitted then to having six drinks of rye, police said.

All Drivers Escape Injuries

Truck-Car Malahat Pile-Up 'Worst Ever', Says Policeman

DUNCAN — Three trucks were heavily damaged in a "melee" of accidents on the Malahat involving five vehicles about 3 p.m. yesterday.

One driver missed injury when a truck collided with his vehicle after he had gotten out to help the driver of an overturned truck.

It was called "the worst I've ever seen" on the Malahat by one policeman.

First part of the accident occurred when a New Method Laundry truck driven by Ronald Trickett, Sidney, was following a car driven by William D. Fraser, Vancouver, north down the long, twisting Bamerton hill at the upper end of the Malahat.

Police said Fraser signalled to turn right into Bamerton, but that the laundry truck skidded across the road while trying to slow. It banged against a guard rail and toppled over it onto its side, doing about $500 damage and cutting a hole in the box.

Approaching from the north, Heaney Cartage and Storage Ltd. truck driver Richard Talsma, 578 Agnes, Victoria, stopped and pulled the laundry driver from the overturned vehicle.

As he was doing it an unidentified driver stopped "to gaze at the sights" and an empty Palm Dairies Ltd. truck behind him was braked and skidded into the front of the Heaney truck with the side of tank milk truck.

Damage to the Heaney vehicle is estimated to be about $200. The engine and left side were severely damaged.

About $400 damage was done to the dairy truck driven by Norman George Hill of Cobble Hill.

Revulsion World-Wide in Chessman Killing

LONDON (UPI)—The execution of Caryl Chessman touched off a worldwide wave of revulsion that rapidly developed into anti-American outbursts in some countries. (See also Pages 3 and 17.)

A crowd of 150 students demonstrated outside the U.S. embassy in Montevideo, Uruguay, shouting "murderers" and "assassins" in protest against the gassing of Chessman.

Police arrested three students at the U.S. consulate in Montreal. The tendency was to blame all Americans and the United States for his death. "Shame on the United States," an Italian in Milan screamed over the phone to the UPI bureau. "I will spit in the face of the next American tourist I meet in the street... barbarians." An Italian newspaper headlined, "Chessman killed in the gas chamber; cruel America." Crowds gathered outside a Rio de Janeiro newspaper to protest and denounce the United States as a "miserable country." Brazil has refused an extradition treaty with the United States because of Brazilian opposition to U.S. capital punishment. Famed French novelist Andre Maurois called Chessman's execution "unfortunate." Newspapers from the extreme right wing to the communist far left wing denounced the execution.

In Rome, where the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano had denounced the plans to execute Chessman as barbaric, all newspapers carried ominous front page reports of the moments leading to execution and then black headlines to proclaim that Chessman was dead.

Polio Strikes Fifth Islander

Vancouver Island's fifth polio patient of the year Saturday joined three others who have been brought to Royal Jubilee Hospital for treatment. Kenneth Beaubien, 13-year-old Chemainus boy suffering from paralytic polio, is described as in satisfactory condition. He is not in an iron lung. Also reported in satisfactory condition at the hospital are Del Spaulding, also of Chemainus; Tony Gardner of Happy Valley, and Mrs. Pearl Hall of Nanaimo.

Bomarc Site Work Goes On

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Pearkes indicated in the Commons yesterday that preparation of two Bomarc sites in Canada will continue until at least the end of June.

B.C. Sets Power Bonds

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. Power Commission will make available a $25,000,000 issue of partly bonds in July, Premier Bennett announced Monday night.

The bonds will be similar to last year's issue of PGE bonds, he said.

The bonds will be fully guaranteed by the government, will bear interest at five per cent and will be redeemable at any time at par.

Less Work

Esquimalt Mill Rate Unchanged

There will be no increase in the Esquimalt mill rate this year, a pleased Reeve A. C. Wurtele announced last night after council completed its budget debate.

"Where in 1959 our mill rate of 35 was divided, 19 for schools and 20 for general levy," said the reeve, "this year it will be 19.6 for schools and 19.4 for general purposes."

"This may mean some reduction in the work done through the municipality this year, but in long consideration of the budget we felt the public, at a time of general increases in expenses, would be happy over a mill rate that went unchanged."

"It means that if an Esquimalt household's assessment has gone unchanged, so will his taxes."

He said in reply to Hazen Argue, CCF House leader, that Canada intends to live up to the agreement with the United States to provide two Bomarc bases in this country until the U.S. government changes its policy or notifies Canada of a change.

NOTHING FINAL

Mr. Pearkes said that though the U.S. House of Representatives Appropriations committee had recommended scrapping of the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile, no final decision by the U.S. administration is expected until the end of June.

Trade Minister Churchill, government House leader, announced that the 1960-61 defence estimates of $1,596,000,000 will be sent to the special Commons defence committee for study.

POLICY SWITCH

This was a reversal of government policy. Previously, the government had said the committee study would be limited to expenditures on defence made up to March 31, 1959.

Estimates of the defence production department will also be sent to the committee. Mr. Pearkes informed opposition leader Pearson that North American air defence policy will be reviewed here July 12 and 13 by the Canada-U.S. cabinet committee. The summer meeting was arranged at the Washington meeting of the group last fall.

Acting prime minister Fleming indicated there will be no government-sponsored Commons debate on defence before the defence committee finishes its work.

Misdial Killed Stay for Caryl

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A misdialled telephone number may have cost Caryl Chessman a stay of execution Monday.

Federal District Judge Louis Goodman was prepared to grant a 30-minute stay of execution but was told the pellets had just been dropped.

The judge said his secretary, Celeste Hickey, misdialed the San Quentin number, getting only four digits instead of five.

Desire Outlives Gargles Galore

Colonist reporter Terry Hammond, along with scores of other Victorians, is trying to kick the cigarette habit with the help of the Colonist's current series of articles by Arthur King. (See Page 5.) Hammond, a three-pack-a-day "addict," describes another step in his withdrawal.

Cigaret Addict's Diary

By TERRY HAMMOND
Q-Day minus 18.

We have forewarned smoking before breakfast and for an hour after meals for three days now, and we are brushing our teeth as though preparing to do a master's thesis on enamel erosion.

The question is, is it getting any easier?

Or, putting it another way, is it getting any harder?

I find that brushing my teeth is getting easier but that my desire to smoke before breakfast and after meals is just about the same. You could say I am gargling better, though. My two-year-old daughter gurgles right alongside me every morning in a fine display of family solidarity. Of course she isn't quitting smoking like me. (She smokes less than a package a day so she figured it wasn't worth it.)

Several people who are going along with me on the Arthur King cure have said they like the idea of a 21-day build-up compared with the system of simply throwing the cigarettes away one day and doing it "cold turkey."

FIRST TIME

These people have all tried to kick the habit before, with what Mr. King would call "indifferent success."

I never did really try to stop smoking before—except once.

I quit at 10 o'clock one morning while trying to climb a small mountain in the interior of B.C. and resumed again at three in the afternoon.

SLIGHT DELAY

I would have resumed earlier except it took about an hour to climb back down the mountain to where I had thrown the package away and half an hour crawling around on my hands and knees through the underbrush trying to find it.

That pretty well wrapped up quitting smoking as far as I was concerned until Arthur King came along.

A man tends to lose much of his conviction that he has mastered the world while crawling about on hands and knees looking for a cigarette on a mountainside.

James Bay Ruling Due

By R. O. MARRION

City council will decide today if it is going to close the James Bay firehall and dismiss 14 firemen to save the taxpayers about $100,000.

If the firehall is closed, it will be over the strongest of protests from Fire Chief James Bayliss.

He told council yesterday that his force was now at a bare minimum, with only 19 or 20 men at a time available to fight fires, and that "if you are going to take the tools away from me I cannot do the job."

But council, bearing in mind the 11-per-cent wage increase an arbitration board gave firemen and policemen this year, seemed about evenly divided when it decided to sleep on the question.

HUMAN LIVES

Ald. Austin Curtis, who with Aldermen Hugh Ramsay and Mrs. Lily Wilson opposed cutting the force, said council should look at the proposal from the point of view of human lives—"I'd feel awfully badly if one or two people lost their lives as a result."

On the other hand, Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood, who proposed the cutback and was supported by Mayor Percy Scurrell, argued that "you can always get very sentimental about statements like that... We've got to be realistic about it."

HIGHLIGHTS

Among highlights of the debate:

Fire Chief Bayliss said his force of 88 men, 76 of them actually fire-fighters, was down to rock-bottom; if there was a fire in a big hotel with "a lot of laddering to save people I don't know how I would do it," the James Bay pumper served the whole area south of Oak Bay Avenue and Pandora and was first equipped to arrive at big hotels, the Bapco paint plant, St. Ann's Academy, St. Joseph's Hospital.

"Picture in your minds Bapco going up in smoke and me arriving with 15 men," he said.

26 YEARS

Mayor Scurrell argued that Bapco had operated for 26 years without a James Bay firehall.

He also told council the provincial government was not interested in whether or not the hall was kept open, and noted that Burnaby with nearly twice as many people had an 86-man force.

Ald. Elmer McEwen said that in another 10 years the fire department would be "eating up half the budget, and we can't afford that." He also held that "the insurance people should provide the fire protection. There's nothing in the Municipal Act to say we should provide it."

Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood held that "we haven't been calling in the fire departments of the adjoining municipalities, and that shows we haven't needed them."

'Aunt Marys' Forced To Welfare?

People who think it's "a real smart thing to get old Mother or old Aunt Mary on welfare" are worrying city welfare committee chairman Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, she told council yesterday.

"There are a lot of our distinguished citizens who think it's smart to take what Aunt Mary has and put her on welfare," she said. "I could name names..."

B.C. Electric Makes Deal In Japan?

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sun says in a Hong Kong dispatch that the B.C. Electric Company is negotiating to buy plastic gas pipe and a bus fleet in Japan.

The newspaper quotes H. L. Purdy, executive vice-president of the company, in a statement made at the Vancouver Board of Trade offshore mission, now touring Asia, left for Tokyo.

The paper says the bus deal alone would cost the company about $1,250,000. "Purdy said buses and pipe made in Canada are about 30 per cent more expensive than Japanese," the newspaper says.

Eight-Storey Fall Survived

WINNIPEG (CP)—A woman survived an eight-storey fall from a downtown Winnipeg department store Monday when her descent was broken by an awning.

She was taken to hospital where her condition is described as critical. Her name has been withheld by police.

Mayor Walks Out, Council Goes On

ALBERNI — City council kept working last night after Mayor Mabel Anderson walked out when she failed to stop the meeting with a proclamation of adjournment.

Trouble arose when the mayor refused to put to a vote a second motion to receive

When Ald. P. S. Barnett challenged her ruling she refused to put the question, "Shall the chair be sustained,"

she declared. "The mayor having made a proclamation you do not challenge the proclamation," she said.

Ald. C. M. Blair was called on by Ald. Barnett to put the vote of challenge which passed while the mayor was still upholding her right to end the meeting by proclamation. Council refused to abide by her order and for several minutes the meeting degenerated into an argument over rights of the mayor in relation to wishes of the council.

Without conceding that council had the right to carry on, Mayor Anderson left the council chamber after Ald. Russell Foxcroft was placed in the chair.
